THE CORRESPONDENCE.

Documents Submitted to the Senate in Confidence—Mr. Sumner Moves a Public Discussion, but Fails to Secure it.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—The correspondence between the United States and Great Britain, relating to the Treaty of Washington, was all duly laid before the Senate, in Executive Session, this afternoon about 1½ o'clock. A special meeting of the Cabinet was held at 12, and the decision to send in the whole correspondence for the confidential information of the Senate, without waiting for the action of the British cabinet, was then made. At 2 o'clock the Senate went into Executive Session, and remained therein nearly two hours, during which nearly all the correspondence was read. A very spirited discussion ensued as to the course to be pursued in regard to the supplemental article which finally ended in the reference of the whole subject to the Foreign Relations Committee for consideration. The opinions developed in the discussion were very varied, and those of the leading Senators were guarded in the extreme. Nothing could be determined as to what the probable course of the Senate will be. Much will depend upon the report of the Committee on Foreign Relations, who will look carefully into the whole subject, and consider the correspondence in all its phases. Prior to the reference of the subject Mr. Sumner made a motion to discuss the question in open session, which was rejected. He did not express any opinion as to the proposition itself. A motion to remove the injunction of secrecy also failed.

Dispatch to the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 13.—The President, today, transmitted to the Senate the correspondence between the United States and Great Britain, relative to the Treaty of Washington, accompanied with a brief message. The envelope bore the word "Confidential." A short time after the reception of the document, the Senate went into executive session, when they were read. It appears the design of the President was to ascertain the views of the Senate as to a new article to the treaty withdrawing the claims for consequential damages from the American statement of the case with the provision, which is in substance, that whenever England or the United States shall be at war and the other a neutral, the belligerent will make no complaint for any indirect, remote or consequential injuries or losses resulting from a failure to observe neutral duties. As it is known that Great Britain will agree to the proposed new article, and that both Governments are anxious to save the treaty by this means, it was thought proper to place the Senate in possession of all the facts, in order that the Executive, acting upon their advice, might pursue the negotiation so as to secure the consummation of the treaty in a manner satisfactory to the two Governments.

There was a brief debate after the reading of the documents involving the merits of the question. A motion was made to remove the injunction of secrecy, but this failed, and the message and documents were then ordered to be printed in confidence, and referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations. There is scarcely a question that the Senate will advise the acceptance of the additional article to the treaty.

Statements in the British Parliament—Mr. Disraeli Thanks the Premier, and Earl Russell Again Postpones his Hostile Motion.

LONDON, May 13.—In the House of Commons, this morning, Mr. Gladstone made his promised explanation of the negotiations regarding the indirect claims and of the position taken by the Government. The House was full and the galleries crowded. Mr. Gladstone, on rising, was greeted with cheers. He said that in order to allow an opportunity for discussion on the statements he was about to make, he would bring a formal motion for the adjournment of the House. After alluding in terms of praise to the forbearance shown by Parliament during the controversy, he said he would commence his narrative of its progress with the 18th of January, when it first became known to him that the claims for indirect damages had been presented at Geneva in the American case. Her Majesty's Government protested, on the 3d of January, that the indirect claims were not within the scope of the Treaty of Washington, nor within the intention of either party to the treaty. Secretary Fish replied, in April, that he thought the Geneva Board ought to decide the entire question. The tone of Mr. Fish's dispatch was most courteous. In the meantime a communication was received from Mr. Schenck, the American Minister, suggesting another course, which would be acceptable to England and America. This was an interchange of notes setting forth the views, terms and conditions whereon both would agree to proceed to arbitration. We accepted this suggestion, continued Mr. Gladstone, and carried on the correspondence altogether by telegraph. On Wednesday, the 8th inst., President Grant submitted a proposition to the United States Senate. On Thursday, we ascertained that the proposition was not precisely as we understood it should be, because of the brevity of the cable dispatch on which it was based. On Friday, a draft covering the letter of our views, was forwarded to Minister Schenck, and although long, was immediately telegraphed by him to Washington. On Saturday Mr. Schenck informed Lord Granville that the President had accepted and the Senate entertained that draft. Mr. Gladstone thought this fact was almost equivalent to a ratification. He begged the further forbearance of the House, now that the question was approaching a satisfactory issue—honorable alike to both nations. If successful in this negotiation, Her Majesty's Government had a right to exact praise for settling a momentous question. The last proposal on the part of Great Britain sustained the position taken by the Government in the Queen's speech at the beginning of the present session. Mr. Gladstone, in conclusion, said he thought he was not too sanguine in predicting that the negotiations would result in a settlement which would redound to the credit of both parties.

As Mr. Gladstone took his seat there was loud and repeated cheering from all parts of the House.

Mr. Disraeli followed with thanks to the Premier for his statement. He should not seek to embarrass the Government. Whatever differences existed on other subjects, all parties were united in the desire for a peaceful and honorable settlement.

In the House of Lords, Earl Granville made a statement similar to that of Mr. Gladstone.

Earl Russell again postponed his motion for an address to the Crown to withdraw from arbitration. He hoped the question was no longer one between the honor of the Crown and the re-election of President Grant.

The Earl of Derby and the Duke of Richmond expressed the hope that the new proposition of the British Government was unambiguous. They had heard enough of misunderstandings.

CONGRESSIONAL PROCEEDINGS

SENATE....WASHINGTON, Monday, May 13.

Mr. Pomeroy, from the Committee on Public Lands, reported a bill to create an additional land district in Kansas. Passed.

Mr. Stewart reported, from the Committee on Pacific Railroads, the general bill for the incorporation of railroads in the Territories.

Mr. Sherman, from the Committee on Finance, reported a substitute for the House bill in regard to the preparation and issue of United States notes, which was agreed to.

PENSIONS.

Mr. Pratt called up the bill to increase twenty per cent. the pensions of soldiers and sailors who lost both eyes or both hands, or were otherwise totally disabled, and stated that it would cause an increased annual expenditure of about $600,000.

The bill was passed.

A PERSONAL EXPLANATION.

Mr. Schurz obtained leave to make a personal statement, and said:

Mr. President, I see it stated in several papers of my State that when the vote was taken upon the Amnesty bill I was not present in the Senate, and that several of the questions connected with that bill might have been decided otherwise by my vote. I wish to say that I was absent on account of sickness, and that I had taken the precaution, in order not to lose my vote, to secure a pair. The Senator from Nevada (Mr. Nye) was kind enough to pair off with me. He would have voted against the Amnesty bill and in favor of those amendments unfavorable to it, while I should have voted for the Amnesty bill and against the amendments calculated to embarrass it. I make this statement so as to let my constituents know that my vote was by no means lost.

BILLS PASSED.

Mr. Goldthwaite called up the bill to authorize the construction of bridges over the Mobile River and the rivers emptying into Mobile Bay, in accordance with the act of the Alabama Legislature, and to declare them post routes. Passed.

The bill in relation to the Dakota Southern Railroad Company was passed.

GOVERNMENT IRON AT WEST POINT.

Mr. Wilson introduced a bill to authorize the opening and working of the iron mines located on the Government lands at West Point, directing the Secretary of War to lease to John H. Stephenson, H. W. Wetherell, Charles F. Raun, William G. Scofield, and Samuel E. Whittingham, of New-York City, for ten years the exclusive privilege of working said mines, they paying a royalty of fifty cents per ton to the Government.

REFUNDING OF TAXES ON DESTROYED SPIRITS.

Mr. Sherman, from the Committee on Finance, reported the House amendment to the bill providing for refunding the taxes on distilled spirits in bond, destroyed by fire and other casualties, with a recommendation that they be disagreed from. The Speaker was accordingly authorized to appoint a Committee of Conference on the part of the Senate on said disagreement.

THE ENFORCEMENT AMENDMENT.

At the expiration of the morning hour the Senate resumed consideration of the bill to amend the Enforcement act.

Mr. Casserly offered a substitute for a portion of his pending amendment, providing that it shall be unlawful for any civil, military or naval officer of the United States, or any person connected with the service to attempt to exercise, directly or indirectly, undue influence or control over voters as to that end, or to distribute ballots marked in any way for the purpose of ascertaining how voters have voted, or to use any means to destroy or impair the secrecy of the ballot; and providing severe penalties for a violation of this law.

Mr. Casserly said in explanation that the use of a ticket with a pattern printed on the back, the workmen in the Mare Island Navy-yard were obliged to vote for the Republican candidates in the yearly State election, thus nearly doubling the Republican vote. He produced some of the tickets used in the State election, and in the subsequent judicial election, and then advocated the first section of his pending amendment, forbidding the use or presence of troops at elections, unless when called for by the civil authorities to keep the peace; and in this connection spoke at length, and in severe condemnation of the presence of troops at elections in New-York City and elsewhere.

Mr. Cole replied. He said that he agreed with his colleague in condemning whatever was wrong or unfair in the manner of conducting the election at Mare Island, but he believed that his colleague was mistaken as to several things he stated, and he knew he was wrong in saying that previous to the election the State had been scoured for men to be employed in the Navy-yard. He also denied that the Government officers had anything to do with the transactions set forth by Mr. Casserly.

The discussion was continued by Messrs. Cole and Casserly.

The Senate went into Executive Session at 2½ o'clock P. M., and remained therein until 4 o'clock, P. M.

Then, in open session, Mr. Casserly's amendment was rejected—the first section by a vote of 18 yeas to 31 nays, and the second section by a vote of 19 to 31.

Mr. Trumbull offered as an amendment the first section of the House General Amnesty bill.

Mr. Nye moved to amend the amendment by adding the second section, requiring that before any person can take the benefit of the amnesty he must swear that he has not, for two years, had any connection with any Kuklux organization. Adopted—yeas 26, nays 24.

Messrs. Boreman and Scott stated that, although they were in favor of amnesty, they would not vote to put it upon this bill, as it was not germain to the subject.

Mr. Trumbull said the Senate had now before it the Amnesty bill as passed by the House, and he called upon the friends of the measure to stand by it. The country, he said, could no longer be deceived by these professions in favor of amnesty, followed by votes against it.

Mr. Sumner gave notice that if the Amnesty bill should be added to the pending measure, he would move his Civil Rights bill as a further amendment. [Laughter.]

No further action was taken on the bill or the amendments.

DEFICIENCY APPROPRIATIONS.

Mr. Cole, from the Conference Committee on the Deficiency Appropriation bill, made a report.

Mr. Sherman, one of the conferees on the part of the Senate, said he had dissented from the report because of his opposition to the clause substituted by the House for the Morrill (Vermont) amendment, and he recommended that the Senate non-concur; he then read from the Morrill amendment.

Mr. Cole said that the clause inserted by the House providing for the payment of owners of cotton seized at the South, would not require more than $500,000.

Pending discussion on the report, the Senate, at 4¾, took a recess until 7½ P. M.

The Senate reassembled at 7½ o'clock this evening, and the session was devoted to Naval bills.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Among the numerous bills introduced and referred under the call of States were the following:

By W. R. Roberts—Directing the President to intercede with the Canadian authorities for the discharge of the Fenian prisoners.

By Mr. Brooks, of New-York—To establish an iron ship-building yard on the waters falling into the Atlantic, and another on the Mississippi or one of its tributaries, and to afford facilities to the navy.

DEMOCRATIC FILIBUSTERING.

Much of the morning hour was wasted in the reading of Mr. Kelley's bill, sent up by Mr. Eldridge, with the title altered, the object being to prevent action on Mr. Hooper's supplementary Civil Rights bill.

MR. VOORHEES REPUDIATES GREELEY.

Mr. Voorhees, rising to a personal explanation, sent to the Clerk's desk and had read a newspaper paragraph from the Washington Republican, to the effect that he was halting and hesitating as to the position he should take on the question of supporting Mr. Greeley, and that as his Democratic colleagues were all said to be in favor of Mr. Greeley, he was likely to lose the favor of the district where his voice had so long been potential. He declared that he did not halt or hesitate. He had not halted or hesitated when he had not more than fourteen Democratic colleagues in the House—nor did he now. If he could ever be tempted to abandon the principle of his political life, it might have been then. As to the nominee of the Cincinnati Convention, whoever believed in the high protective tariff principles of its chief man might support him, but he (Mr. Voorhees) would not. Was he expected to support Mr. Greeley because he had been the life-long champion of doctrines which he (Mr. Voorhees) opposed? Was he expected, as a Western man, representing a Western laboring constituency, that was ground down by a high protective tariff monopoly, to support the great champion of protection? Was he expected to support a man who had been the most clamorous advocate in all the land for that Kuklux legislation which had desolated the homes of the Southern people? If Mr. Greeley's nomination promised relief to that blasted and down-trodden section, there was not much which he (Voorhees) would not forego to subserve so holy and so benign a purpose. But Mr. Greeley had been the earnest advocate of the legislation which had paralyzed and prostrated the South; and was that the reason why he should get his support. He was told that the present Administration had been cruel and unkind to the South, but the Administration had simply executed a law which the Cincinnati nominee had dictated to Congress. That was all the difference between them. One was the executive officer acting under the oath of office to execute the law, and the other was a man who had no oath on his conscience in regard to the matter, but who urged the passage of that legislation. Was he expected to support Mr. Greeley because within a recent date he desired a still further extension of the President's power to suspend habeas corpus all over the South? Was he expected to support him because he was the earnest and urgent advocate of the present "force bayonet" Election law that subjected every voting precinct of 20,000 people to the supervision, and in certain contingencies to the control, of the military? Was he expected to support him because two months ago this very man had clamored and raged in his great organ in favor of a law to place the election in the State of New-York under Federal control, and also in certain contingencies under military control? Was such a man fit to receive his vote for the Presidency? Was such a man fit to be in that high place? Was that the voice of statesmanship which was called for at this hour? Was that reform, to go before the union sentiment of the country and appeal to it in favor of a man who stood on the record for the "inalienable right" of a State or of a community to dissolve this Union? Was he, as a friend of the Southern people, called upon to vote for a man who, during the entire Fall and Winter of 1860, wrote with all his acknowledged power in favor of the inalienable rights of any dissatisfied portion of the country to break up the Union and form another Government for themselves? Mr. Greeley had not recanted those opinions, but on the contrary, in his book on the "American Conflict," published in 1864, he had analyzed then and defined them to this effect: "That if, in consultation, convention and the like, the South still desired, with any considerable approach to unanimity, to separate, it should be allowed to do so."

Mr. Speer, of Pennsylvania, objected that Mr. Voorhees' remarks were not in the nature of a personal explanation; but the Speaker overruled the objection, and Mr. Voorhees proceeded with his speech amid great excitement and confusion, which rendered much of what he said inaudible at the reporters' desk.

And yet, when the Southern people did what this man had told them they had the inalienable right to do, no wild beast, hungry for blood, ever screamed over its prey as he (Greeley) had shouted "on to Richmond," to kill everyone of them for doing what he had told them they had a perfect right to do. That was a solemn page of history which could not be reversed. The waters of the ocean could not wash it out. Mortal man could not not gainsay it. A Red Sea of blood had not been enough to satisfy this man, but he had also insisted upon the confiscation of the homes and property of the women and children of the South. He repeated that Mr. Greeley, after three years of the war, had still held and published the same sentiments, and they still stood unreversed. Was a man fit to be elevated to the Presidency who stood committed to the doctrine that whoever desired to dissolve their connection with the Government had an inalienable right to do so? That might commend him to some people, but it would not when his subsequent course was called to mind. Some of the highest men of the South had told him, (Voorhees,) with tears in their eyes, that more than any one thing which satisfied them that they could have a separate system and form of Government to suit themselves, was the voice of the then victorious Republican Party speaking through its acknowledged organ. Others might do as they pleased; but, for him (Voorhees) and his household, he would not do this thing. Parties, to be successful, must be banded together on a common principle. No other combination of men was worthy of success. He was told that his party desired success against this Administration. No one desired it more than himself. But there was something which was better than success, and sweeter to the heart than success. A great man had said that it was better to be right than to be President; and so he said, that it was better to be right than to succeed. He entered his protest against the attempt to transfer the Democrats of the country to a camp where there was nothing belonging to them.

Mr. Roosevelt asked Mr. Voorhees whether he would support the candidate of the Democratic National Convention at Baltimore, whoever that candidate might be.

Mr. Voorhees replied that he was not in the habit of voting against Democratic nominations. He believed that the gentleman himself would have some difficulty in answering his own question. [Laughter.] But he did not despair of success. His position was in favor of standing by the principles of his party, and he would vote for the man who represented those principles. He had no fears, however, of what the Baltimore Convention would do, but he could not vote for a man who spoke of the Democratic Party as that to which all the haunts of debauchery gave nine-tenths of their support.

It had been sometimes said that this nominee had gone bail for Jefferson Davis when he was in prison; but that was too narrow a platform for any party to stand upon. [Laughter.] It would be a most dangerous thing to raise an issue as between the man who put Mr. Davis in jail and the man who bailed him out. It would not be a safe issue; and he implored his Southern friends not to make it. It might provoke a comparison, which would not be favorable to the nominee of the Cincinnati Convention. Mr. Davis had not been helpless. A hundred millions of property at the South had been ready to bail him; and it sometimes seemed to him (Voorhees) that it was merely a piece of restless impertinence on the part of the nominee of the Cincinnati Convention to offer himself as bail for Mr. Davis. When Andrew Johnson and Edwin M. Stanton, Secretary of War, desired and proposed, as he knew to be the fact, to arrest Robert E. Lee, Joseph E. Johnson, and other prominent Confederate officers, there was but one man who could prevent that thing being done, and that was the present incumbent of the Presidential office. Gen. Grant had stepped forward and told them that these men had given him their parole as soldiers, and that parole should be respected. [Applause from the Republican side of the House.] If he should be driven to take the stump and press the claims of Mr. Greeley, he would find a candidate opposing him who had done more and kinder things to the South than his nominee had done.

Mr. Roosevelt suggested that Mr. Voorhees had been recently in conference with President Grant.

Mr. Voorhees said he had not crossed the threshold of the White House for three years, and whoever made such a statement had uttered a vile calumny.

Mr. Roosevelt said he made that statement on information given him. He had heard two or three days ago that such an interview had taken place.

Mr. Voorhees—Then the gentleman associates with men who do not tell the truth.

Mr. Randall asked Mr. Voorhees whether he would have voted for Judge Davis, and advocated his election if he had received the nomination at Cincinnati?

Mr. Voorhees—Judge Davis represents many things in common with my own views.

Mr. Randall—He is a Republican.

Mr. Voorhees—That is not the point. I cannot join a combination which represents nothing that I am for. On great Constitutional questions Judge Davis stood in troublesome times where I stood—in behalf of the rights and liberties of the citizen, while such men as Mr. Greeley were burying them into the earth. The strong probabilities are, in my judgment, that if Judge Davis had been presented at Cincinnati he would have been accepted by a majority of the Democratic Party of the country. In that I may be mistaken. I am only stating my own individual opinion. I should have regarded him with very great favor. It is quite a different thing whether I should vote for a Republican who has much in connection with my own views, or for one who has nothing at all in common with them.

OTHER DEMOCRATS DEFINE THEIR POSITIONS.

Mr. Randall—I should not vote for either of them, unless he was indorsed by the Democratic Convention.

Mr. Voorhees—That is right.

Mr. Randall—And I should vote for either of them if indorsed by the Democratic Convention.

Mr. Bird—I would not vote for either of them if he was indorsed.

Mr. Kerr stated that so far as the statement in the Republican referred to him, it was simply untrue.

Mr. Niblack repeated the same remark, adding that nothing but the power of organization would compel him to vote for Mr. Greeley; but that whenever the Democratic Party acted on the question he would yield obedience to its action.

Mr. Holman also repudiated the Republican article so far as it referred to him. He did not propose to forestall the action of the Baltimore Convention.

AID ASKED FOR MORE BURNED TOWNS.

Mr. B. F. Myers introduced and asked to have passed a bill for the relief of the sufferers by the late fire at Somerset, Penn., similar to the Chicago bill.

Mr. Butler desired it extended to the sufferers by the fire at Ayer, Mass.

Objection was made, and the bill was referred.

POLITICAL DISABILITIES.

Mr. Butler, of Massachusetts, from the Judiciary Committee, reported a bill removing political disabilities from all persons who aided the late rebellion, except Senators and Representatives in the Thirty-sixth and Thirty-seventh Congresses, officers in the judicial, military and naval service of the United States, and heads of Departments and foreign Ministers of the United States.

Mr. Cox suggested that the bill was one of the results of Mr. Greeley's nomination at Cincinnati.

Mr. Butler said that it was not, nor was it the result of Mr. Voorhees' speech. [Laughter.]

Mr. Eldridge remarked that it was the best and most liberal bill of the kind that ever passed the House.

The bill was passed by the requisite two-thirds vote and without division.

Mr. Butler also reported the bill removing political disabilities from some 25,000 persons by name, which was also passed.

Mr. Farnsworth asked to have passed the bill removing all political disabilities.

Mr. Perce objected.

SUPPLEMENTARY CIVIL RIGHTS.

Mr. Elliott moved to suspend the rules and adopt a resolution directing the Judiciary Committee to report a supplementary Civil Rights bill. Negatived—yeas 112, nays 77; less than two-thirds in the affirmative.

STATUE TO COL. BAKER, OF CALIFORNIA.

Mr. Sargent moved to suspend the rules and pass the bill appropriating $10,000 for a life-size marble statue of the late Senator Baker, of California, by Horatio Stone. Passed.

PUBLIC LANDS—FOREIGN AFFAIRS.

On motion of Mr. Ketcham, the sessions of Wednesday and Thursday evenings next were set apart for the business of the Committee on Public Lands; and on motion of Mr. Banks, the sessions of Monday and Tuesday evenings of next week were set apart for the business of the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

TEXAS CONTESTED ELECTION.

The House then took up the Texas contested election case, and after speeches by Mr. Clarke, the sitting member, and others, a resolution was adopted declaring Mr. Clark not entitled to the seat, and D. C. Giddings, the contestant, entitled to it.

Mr. Giddings was then sworn in.

THE TARIFF.

On motion of Mr. Donnan all debate on the Tariff bill was ordered to be closed at 3 o'clock next Thursday by 127 to 59.

LIVERPOOL CONSULATE.

Mr. Cox offered a resolution calling for reports, correspondence, &c., in regard to the Liverpool Consulate. Adopted.

The House, at 4¾, took a recess till 7½, the evening session to be for the consideration of the bill codifying the Pension laws.

WASHINGTON.

Representative Voorhees Criticises the Cincinnati Nominee.

The Enforcement Act—Sumner and Trumbull—Prospects of the Tariff—Vindication of Mr. Mullett—The Democrats and Civil Rights.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—Mr. Voorhees broke the first Democratic lance against Greeley today, and in the mêlée which followed none but Democrats took a hand. The Republicans gathered around the Democratic outskirts enjoying the agitation which was convulsing the party upon whose support Mr. Greeley depends for everything. The verdict among the hearers was unanimous that a more scorching arraignment of the defender of secession has never been made, and yet there was not a Republican member of the House who gave any indications of taking exception to the criticism. It was done in Mr. Voorhees' best style of oratory—than which there is none more polished and effective in the House. When he reached the passage in which he compared the record of Greeley and Grant during the rebellion, and the inestimable difference which exists in favor of Grant, the round of applause which he got from the Republicans was joined in by every one of them, and was so spontaneous and so hearty that those who have been maintaining that Grant has few real friends among the Representatives were disconcerted. Meanwhile the irritation among certain of the Democrats had reached the boiling point. Mr. Speer, of Pennsylvania, volunteered himself as spokesman, and said Voorhees was delivering a speech in the interests of the Republican Party. Speer was so distressed and indignant that it is not worth while to deny that he was right about the speech. Mr. Roosevelt, of New-York, insinuated that the speech was the result of a conference and a bargain with the President. Voorhees demolished this fiction in a way that settled that point conclusively. Afterward, when every member of the Democratic delegation from Indiana, including Messrs. Kerr, Niblack, Holman and Manson, arose and denied that they were in favor of Greeley's indorsement, as the papers reported them to be; the prospect of convincing the country that the President had bought up these men as well as Voorhees was so discouraging that Mr. Greeley's friends left that tack and swallowed their chagrin. The Pennsylvania Democrats and many of the Southern Democrats are denouncing Voorhees without stint, while a great number of the old fire-eaters among the Democrats rushed up to him when he sat down and overwhelmed him with congratulations. Nobody pretends to deny that the speech has set the Democracy into a perfect uproar, at least temporarily. It was so uncompromising as to leave no room to escape its conclusions. It threatens to be as demoralizing to the Liberal Republicans as to the Democrats, because it is a comparison of their candidate with Grant in a manner most complimentary to the latter, which comes from the one representative Democrat who has in the past most uniformly denounced the President and his policy. The whole scene was a sensation, and whatever the outcome, nobody can deny to Mr. Voorhees the merit of perfect frankness and honor in thus dissipating the guise of false pretenses of support of the Liberal nominees with which it was thought to surround his position.

THE ENFORCEMENT ACT.

Mr. Casserly today made his speech on the Amendatory Enforcement act, and concluded only a few minutes before two o'clock, the time that was agreed upon to take the vote. Mr. Cole made a brief reply, and Mr. Casserly in his turn replied two or three minutes to Mr. Cole, the time being extended for the purpose by unanimous consent. During Mr. Casserly's speech a confidential communication from the President was received, through Gen. Porter, and Mr. Morton moved an Executive Session, with the understanding that on coming out of Executive Session the understanding in regard to voting without debate should be continued when the Senate doors were again opened. A little before 4 o'clock the voting began, and there was every appearance of a quick result, when Mr. Trumbull moved to amend the bill by adding to it the first section of the Amnesty bill, which was before the Senate last week. Mr. Trumbull opposes the enforcement law, and, in emulation of Mr. Sumner's tactics with the Civil Rights bill. He thought to kill it, if possible, with amnesty. Mr. Nye moved to add the second section of the same bill to the first, offered by Mr. Trumbull, and it was carried. Before further action was taken, the time at which the Senate had agreed to take a recess arrived, and the bill goes over till to-morrow.

A SCENE IN THE SENATE.

Mr. Morrill, of Vermont, asked Mr. Trumbull if he would vote for the two bills if united, and he stated that he would vote for anything constitutional to secure with it amnesty. Mr. Scott asked how it would be if the Civil Rights bill were added. Trumbull said he knew of no Civil Rights bill. "Well, I know of one," spoke up Mr. Sumner, who was engaged in conversation in another part of the Chamber, but was attracted by the slighting way in which his bill was disposed of. The peculiar earnestness of the remark, as well as the quickness with which it followed Mr. Trumbull's words, caused a burst of laughter in Senate and galleries. Quite a spirited discussion followed between the two Senators, and Mr. Sumner gave notice that he should move his Civil Rights bill again as an amendment. It is quite probable that the majority which favors the Enforcement Act amendment will take the responsibility of refusing to put on the Amnesty bill, and that Mr. Trumbull's filibustering will prove useless.

INTERNAL REVENUE APPOINTMENTS.

The following appointments of internal revenue officers were made today: Storekeepers—Lester Shaw, Third District of Ohio; J. B. Jones, Fifth District of Kentucky. Gaugers—John P. Harker, First District of New-Jersey; E. C. Hamilton, Seventeenth District of Pennsylvania; Hiram Osgood, Twenty-fourth District of New-York.

NOMINATIONS BY THE PRESIDENT.

The President sent to the Senate today the following nominations: Merritt C. Page, to be Attorney-General of Montana Territory; S. H. Simons, to be Assistant Surgeon in the Navy; Second Assistant Engineer Carlton Auber, to be First Assistant Engineer on the retired list.

NEW-ORLEANS COLLECTORSHIP.

Mr. Casey's successor, as Collector of Customs at New-Orleans, will not be appointed for several days.

CONDITION AND PROSPECTS OF THE TARIFF.

Another favorable turn in the status of the tariff occurred today, and the passage of the present bill is almost positively assured before final adjournment by the vote this morning. Mr. Dawes moved that all debate on the bill, including the entire tariff and internal revenue portions, be closed at 3 o'clock on Thursday. This involved a suspension of the rules by a two-third majority, and was therefore a bold step and one full of risk; but the motion prevailed by 127 to 57—the largest majority that has yet followed Mr. Dawes. Mr. Kelley has been credited with the intention to attempt another coup de main to regain the ground lost by the high protectionists, but today's vote has killed any hope he may have had. It is now thought the bill will reach the Senate by next Monday, and that Congress can adjourn if it will on the 29th inst., without any detriment to the public business.

GIDDINGS VS. CLARKE.

The contested case of the Third Texas District Giddings vs. Clarke—was disposed of today. Gen. Clarke was permitted to speak in his own behalf. This he did, and in a speech that will not soon be forgotten by any who heard it. He acknowledged frankly that so far as the House was concerned, his was a prejudged case, and he did not ask the House to reverse the decision of the Committee; but he completely justified the Governor in awarding him the certificate by showing how thoroughly the voters were intimidated by the threats and devices of the Texas Kuklux.

POST-OFFICE APPROPRIATIONS.

The House Committee on Appropriations today reported back the Post-office Appropriation bill, concurring in most of the Senate amendments, the most important of which is the Pacific Mail Steam-ship subsidy, which was unanimously recommended by the Committee.

CLOSE OF ANOTHER INVESTIGATION.

The House Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds have finished the Seneca-stone investigation, and Judge Tyner is now drawing up the report, which completely exonerates Mr. Mullett, Supervising Architect of the new State Department, and expresses the opinion that his administration has been economical and judicious, and entirely in compliance with the directions of the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds; and that the charges against him are without foundation. No minority report will be made. This disposes of another of the charges intended to blacken the character of the President, and with which his name has not been connected, even by suspicion.

THE DEMOCRATS AND CIVIL RIGHTS.

Mr. Elliott, the colored member from South Carolina, moved today to suspend the rules and instruct the Judiciary Committee to report the Civil Rights bill to the House. He did this to get the Democrats recorded on a square issue for or against the bill. Mr. Eldridge, who has engineered the filibustering on this bill as it stood in the morning hour, has repeatedly said that all he and his friends asked was its reference to the Judiciary Committee. The vote today showed the insincerity of this assertion. It was a strictly party vote, not a Democrat voting for the reference and instruction, and not a Republican against. It stood, yeas 112 to nays 77—not the required two-thirds. Mr. Greeley has thus another authoritative indication of the sentiment of the party whose support he covets and supplicates.

ALBANY.

Angry and Dishonest Attack on the Times in the Assembly—Miller, of Insurance Notoriety, Skulks Behind a Resignation—Gov. Hoffman Shields Him by Accepting it—Successor to Judge Leonard—The Central Under-Ground.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

ALBANY, May 13.—The Assembly met at 7½ this evening, and immediately plunged into a passionate discussion of the Times' articles of the last two days on the subject of the impeachment proceedings, which were introduced as a question of privilege by Mr. Alvord. He made a vehement speech of half an hour's length in vindication of his course on this and other subjects, and in violent denunciation of the Times.

Mr. Husted followed in a similar strain. He said he had made every effort to avoid service in the matter of the impeachment, and that his resolution to appoint Mr. Tilden as a manager had been offered in perfect good faith.

Mr. Vedder also spoke to the same effect, using most intemperate language.

Mr. Tilden also spoke on the same question. He said he felt no personal regret that he was left off the Board of Management, and believed that the Board would faithfully prosecute the charges.

Soon after Mr. Kingsland attempted to get in a resolution adding Mr. Tilden to the number of managers, but he could not obtain a two-thirds vote to permit it to be offered; Mr. Alvord again, on this question, saying that he considered nine a rather large number, and intimating that if any additions were made he should ask to be excused from service.

Mr. Prince made an earnest appeal to the House to take up and pass the resolution. He said Mr. Tilden had devoted himself with the greatest zeal and ability to the collection of evidence and the preparation of the case, and he intimated that his further aid was essential to the prosecution. The vote stood 52 to 49 on considering the resolution.

INSURANCE MILLER PRACTICES THE CARDOZO DODGE.

The resignation of Miller, Superintendent of Insurance, was announced this evening just as the Senate was about to take up his case as a special order. This resignation operated as in the case of Cardozo, both as a confession of judgement and a bar to further proceedings. The Governor promptly sent in the name of Smith M. Weed, formerly member of Assembly from Clinton County, as his successor; and also the name of Chas. H. Wenfield, of Orange County, as Commissioner of Appeals, in place of Judge Leonard, appointed Supreme Court Justice, in place of Cardozo. The Republican Senators held a caucus this evening and resolved on the rejection of both these names. Weed, it will be recollected, is the man who had the fight in the Assembly last session with Jim Irving, he has been twice a member of Assembly, and has generally acted in concert with the Tweed dynasty. Winfield was, several years ago, a Democratic member of Congress from the Orange and Sullivan District.

THE REGISTRY LAW.

The New-York Registry law, as amended, passed both Houses this evening.

M'CUNN.

The Judiciary Committee has not yet been able to agree on what course to take on Judge McCunn's case.

MADDEN MAKES ANOTHER ATTACK ON THE UNDER-GROUND.

In the Senate today Mr. Madden, seizing the opportunity when Senators friendly to the Central Under-ground bill were generally absent, suddenly called up the bill with intent to kill it. He reckoned without his host, as several Senators who had voted against the bill originally, protested against his conduct as unfair, and said if the matter were pressed to a vote, they would vote against laying the bill on table. Seeing he was not likely to succeed, he withdrew his motion. S.

Walker had expressed the opinion that the Virginia delegation to the Democratic Convention would support Mr. Greeley, and that the State would ratify that nomination, will to-morrow say, "It is well known to those in Richmond best acquainted with Gov. Walker's sentiments that he has never made the avowal here attributed to him, that he had said nothing to commit the Conservative party in Virginia with which he is in full communion of purpose, to any course of action in advance of the authorized expression of its opinions."

It is stated that Ford and Clark were appointed to administer a pummeling to Cleveland, which they proceeded to execute as the latter was returning to his hotel on Saturday night after serenading the ladies. As soon as Cleveland escaped from his assailants, he ran to the hotel, procured his revolver and returned to the scene of the encounter, and after some words, Ford shot at him. VESUVIUS.

Graphic Accounts of the Recent Eruption.

Early Stages of the Disturbance—The Third Night—Destruction of Life—Scenes Among the Neapolitans—The Last Alarm.

Naples (April 26) Correspondence of the London Daily Telegraph.

Our volcanic neighbor has not only been unusually boisterous this time, but it has excelled itself in treachery. The overwhelming of Herculaneum, if not a myth, may have been sensational in its day, but in tragic horror it must have fallen behind some of the heart-rending scenes which we have been obliged to witness during the past week. Before the storm there was a calm—an exquisite calm—for which the Destroyer decked himself in his most transcendent beauty. For several nights before the new craters burst the mountain was so enchanting in its robe of flame that Naples could not think of going to bed. Hour after hour until the return of daylight one and all of us lingered in the streets, or by the shore of the bay, drinking in the glory of a Vesuvian transfiguration. Few who witnessed it will ever forget the first of these nocturnal displays. When darkness fell on the night of the 23d the great cone seemed suddenly to festoon itself with wreaths of fire. From its summit three craters were playing simultaneously. Continuous clouds of luminous smoke ascended in the starlit sky. On their wings they bore solid masses of scoriæ, which, after rising to a considerable distance, either fell back into the crater or were thrown over the side of the cone into the streams of lava which were flowing down the mountain. The moon, as if jealous of a terrestrial rival, shone with such brilliancy as only Southern heavens are favored with. The three craters emulated it in the steadiness of their illumination. From hour to hour the scene maintained an unchanging grandeur, until toward sunrise, when it effaced itself almost as abruptly as it had appeared. It was past 3 o'clock before I could turn my back on Vesuvius, and wend my way homeward, thinking distrustfully of the probable sequel. Next night the cone did not fulfill our eager anticipations. Two of the three craters failed to take part in the salamandrine spectacle, but the third belched and flashed and smoked with a triple energy. The scoriæ which it ejected were peculiarly interesting and varied in shape. Some looked like stones of vast size; others were star-shaped, and others, as they ascended, exploded into millions of fiery fragments. The discharge of lava, which on the first night had been hardly noticeable, now assumed a prominent part in the drama. It was vomited forth with such energy as to carry it some above the lips of the cone and throw it some distance down the slope. There it quickly divided itself into two streams, and made its way in one direction toward the Observatory, and in another into the old Atrio del Cavallo, which, by aid of the reinforcement, resumed its menacing course toward Ottojano.

THE THIRD NIGHT.

On the third night the spectacle had further diminished in brilliance, but those who were not absorbed in spectacular enjoyment could discern indications of increased volcanic energy. The immense tongues of flame, though they had lost some of their dazzling brightness, shot higher up than before. The lava and scoriæ were also carried to a greater height. The former was ejected in larger volume, which ultimately showed its increase in the accelerated flow of the lava-streams. The subterranean thunder, which early in the week had made itself heard but dimly, like the sound of heavy artillery at many miles' distance, now grew more audible, and appeared to be approaching nearer the city. All through this ill-fated night the premonitions of a catastrophe followed hard upon each other. Yet of what did happen no one could have the slightest warning. It was an incident unprecedented in the treacherous, capricious history of Vesuvius. The sympathetic sky was full of omens. Its crystal clearness had departed, and in place of it fleecy clouds were driving across the heavens. From a thousand-tinted effulgence they declined into dullness, then into a heavy threatening darkness. Moon and stars paled their lights ere they were veiled by the haze which overspread the sky. But the surface of the bay continued smooth and glassy, unruffled by even a Summer breeze. As the shadows of smoke and flame cast upon it from the mountain became more sombre, it partook of their reflected gloom; otherwise it was apparently unconscious of the Titanic struggle which was rending the bowels of the earth beneath and around it.

DESTRUCTION OF LIFE.

As day was dawning, a fearful horror occurred on the side of the mountain next the city. Of late years access to Vesuvius has been greatly facilitated by the short railway which skirts the bay and connects Naples with Castelamare, a town at the opposite corner. This faces the mountain throughout its whole distance, and in its vicinity will be found most of the villages whose names always obtrude themselves during the progress of an eruption. One of these, Resina, is a favorite point for making the ascent from. It is not far from Prof. PALMIERI's Observatory, and it enjoys the more exciting distinction of lying in the line of a great current of lava. Thousands of visitors have ascended the hill nightly from Resina, driving up as far as to the Observatory, and then walking to the bed of last year's lava. On Friday morning many such excursion parties were assembled directly under the cone. They had begun to disperse with the first indications of sunrise, but hundreds still lingered on the spot. Without a single movement to warn them, the earth opened under foot, and the dead lava which they had been treading upon as a curiosity turned again to molten fire. Those who were not engulphed in the chasm as it burst forth attempted to flee for their lives. Happily, the fleet and sure of foot were many. They reached safety; but woe to whoever fell by the way! The earth they fell on was already at furnace-heat, and fresh waves of lava overtook them ere they could rise again. A few were miraculously delivered by noble efforts on the part of the strong nerved men in the company. Dragging them in haste toward the Observatory, their deliverers placed them on the carriages which were waiting there, and accommodation was provided for them at Resina. I have been told by a friend, who was at the very edge of the chasm when it burst open, that the effect on the imagination was as though the whole mountain had begun to move from its basis. As he fled, he felt as if the mountain was following him, and not until he had recovered his senses at Resina could he convince himself that what he had seen was only a partial eruption of the crust which overlies the hidden fires of Vesuvius. An account which has been furnished to a Neapolitan journal affirms that there were two simultaneous openings, and that flames, bursting out from both, enveloped in a circle of fire all who were within reach. A carriage which happened to be inside this circle was burnt up in an instant, as if it had been spirited away. Shortly before the eruption a lady was seen in it, but of her nothing whatever has been heard since. The burns inflicted were of a peculiarly painful character, even when they looked slight. The patients, on reaching the hospitals, were immediately enveloped in wool. Notwithstanding the care with which they have been dressed, and the skill with which they are nursed, they cannot move without enduring agony which compels them to scream.

SCENES IN NAPLES.

The Mayor of Resina acted with energy and forethought from the moment that he heard of the accident. Having seen to the medical arrangements that were necessary, he telegraphed to the Prefect for troops to aid the police in maintaining order. Naples could spare him enough, for it was not in a mood to require military watching. Of all the contrasts I have ever witnessed in actual life, that which the Neapolitans exhibited between Thursday night and Friday morning was the most astounding. I had left them half an hour before the catastrophe occurred, when they were drawing to a close their third night's ecstacy over the grandeur of the Moloch whom to the last they will admire more than dread. The flames of the lava, which were being vomited from the single crater, had sunk till they appeared like an aureole on the summit of the cone. Every street commanding a view of the mountain was thronged with spectators. I did not pass one which was not as silent as the night itself. If nothing else in the world can, Vesuvius solemnizes the signori and lazzaroni alike of Naples. It hushes them into reverence, and fills them with indefinite unutterable terrors. When, after a few hours' repose, I hied back to the still crowded streets in one respect they were signally changed. The lazzaroni were disputing, screaming, jabbering, and gesticulating, according to their everyday custom. It was only about the new crater at the Observatory, and the number of the Curtii who had fallen into the gulf. One authority insisted that it could not be more than 200; another declared that it was at least twice that; and a third had good information which made the total close on 1,000. My own inquiries among the witnesses, tested by what has been ascertained by the authorities, induced me to telegraph to you an estimate of sixty or seventy, and that is the figure most commonly believed at present. I am happy to be able to say with confidence that none of our foreign visitors are among the missing. My first business, on learning the supposed extent of the mortality, was to visit each of the fourteen English and American hotels in Naples. Out of nearly 600 strangers at present occupying them not one failed on Friday morning. Many had been up at the Observatory during the previous night, and even upon the very site of the new crater, but an early return home delivered them from an unsuspected danger. Throughout Friday consternation reigned in Naples. The first touch of peril had prepared all minds to expect the worst. Vesuvius gave in various ways sufficient occasion for increased alarm. The booming and the rumbling of the underground artillery sounded as close as if it were beneath our feet. The flow of lava had increased, and two enormous streams were rolling toward the sea as if they would sweep away half a dozen villages in their course. Windows rattled and the strongest houses trembled to their foundations. The smoke rising from the crater was now mingled with volumes of sulphurous vapor, and blackened by the ashes it carried in its furious ascent. There was far more danger in the scoriæ than in the lava; for they were confined to no channel. Scattering themselves wherever the prevailing winds carried them—which was, happily, not in the direction of Naples—they became firebrands for the destruction of houses, vineyards, forests, and every form of combustible property. On Friday night Naples was a degree lower in its descent toward abject terror. The Bourse had been closed all day. No one attempted to think of anything but the awful noises under foot, and the conflagration which was spreading among the villages lying at the mercy of the volcano. Poor San Sebastiano was nearly reduced to ashes, and its twelve hundred inhabitants had to seek refuge nearer the coast, whither the lava and the ashes were fast following them. After nightfall, when the volcanic and the artificial fires got mingled together in a Plutonian landscape, it was thought in Naples that all the towns bordering on the Bay, Portici Resina, Torre del Greco, and Torre dell'Annunciata, were in flames together. The apprehension was fortunately overdraw. What deceived us was the glare of no less than nine craters, all smoking simultaneously.

A BRIEF ALARM.

This morning we had our last and worst alarm, but it was of short duration. A change of wind brought the clouds of smoke and ashes drifting across the city. After a few hours' anxious experience, in which we had presentiments of the fate of Pompeii, the wind mercifully chopped round to its former direction and the salamandrine fog passed on to seaward. While I have been writing a further improvement has occurred. The sky is now comparatively clear, for Vesuvius has begun to consume his own smoke—at least, he has rolled himself up in it, and his mighty head is for the moment invisible. The current of lava has also checked itself, and there is a partial subsidence of the devil's tattoo which has been going on below.

FASHIONS FOR MAY.

Le Follet says the toilets of the season become more elegant and in stricter accordance with the canons of good taste every day.

Costumes still reign supreme for out-of-doors, and it is very rarely that the mantle, whether tight or loose, is not made of the same material as the rest of the dress. The few black silk mantles that are worn are excessively rich and elaborate in ornament, and profusely trimmed with lace.

It is very likely that white muslin fichus and mantelets of different forms will be worn, as the season advances, to accompany those materials, such as printed muslins, which are unsuitable for complete costumes.

Pale, self-colored batistes, trimmed with lace, white or the same color, or muslin frills and plaitings, will be very well worn when the warm weather comes.

Silk dresses with flounces and polonaises, or tunics and pélerines of silk grenadine, the same color, will be much in favor. For out-of-door wear they will be generally completed by a bonnet or hat of the same thin material.

Plain or figured black silk grenadine will also be much worn as polonaises and tunics over colored silk, for dinner or demi-toilets. White muslin and gaze de Chambéry will also be arranged in the same manner.

The trains of long dresses do not begin quite so forward as they used; this leaves the feet more liberty in walking.

Bodices are almost all worn open, with fichus of muslin or tulle underneath.

Corselets, either with or without tunics, will be very much worn. Some have shoulder-straps or short sleeves, others merely come under the arms. These elegant adjuncts to a toilet are becoming to almost all figures; they are made with points, or basques, plain or postillons. For young ladies, as the season advances, they will be accompanied by white muslin bodices, handsomely trimmed with lace or muslin insertions over color. This will enable many skirts to be worn whose bodices would be too hot.

This arrangement also makes a very pretty dinner dress, or demi-toilet.

The corselets tuniques are cut in a variety of elegant shapes. With some the tunic portion hangs plainly, with others it is draped; this arrangement depends entirely on the style and substance of the material employed.

Fine cachemire, Danish alpaca, mousseline de laine, chaly, and white muslin lined with colored silk or batiste, are the most fashionable fabrics for robes de chambre. The "Watteau," the "Paletôt" and the "Princesse" shapes are the most elegant. In each case the bodice and skirt are cut together; the "Watteau" has a large plait at the back, which gradually flows into the skirt, the fronts hang loosely, or are confined by a ceinture placed under the plait at the back.

The "Paletôt" is cut perfectly loose everywhere, confined with a sash or left to hang, according to taste. The last, and unquestionably the most elegant and becoming, is the "Princesse." This is cut to the figure, with side pieces at the back and plaits in the front; it is cut a little open at the throat, and admits of much greater recherché in the trimming.

The white petticoats, worn under light silk and muslin dresses, are most elaborate.

Very tasty little aprons are worn, covered with trimmings; many will be made of colored washing-satin, trimmed with muslin or lace, to wear with white dresses.

Bonnets are worn more like hats than ever; in fact, it is very difficult to tell them apart, especially when the latter have strings, which are tied loosely under the chin. The prettiest style of bonnet is worn rather forward, over the hair, with the strings tied under the chignon. Straw of all kinds is used in the shapes. Rice straw being the lightest, this is generally lined with color.

AMERICA AND THE PORTE.

Gen. Sherman and Lieut. Grant in Interview with the Sultan—Interchange of Assurances of International Friendship.

From the Levant Herald, April 19.

Yesterday, Gen. SHERMAN and Lieut. GRANT, accompanied the American Minister to the Palace of Dolma Bagtche for the purpose of taking leave of the Sultan and of expressing their deep sense of obligation for the great kindness with which His Majesty had been graciously pleased to welcome them to his capital, and the very flattering attentions which had been shown them during their stay. SERVER PASHA, Minister of Foreign Affairs; SADULLAH BEY, Chief Dragoman of the Imperial Divan; HAMDI BEY, Master of Ceremonies, and Introducer of Ambassadors; and RIFAAT BEY, (son of KIANI PASHA,) acting as assistant to the Master of Ceremonies, were present, as well as the chief officers of the Imperial household. His Majesty was pleased to meet his guests at the foot of the staircase and to accompany the son of President GRANT to the hall of audience, where they all, at His Majesty's request, took their seats. The interview is said to have been of the most agreeable nature and to have left a strong impression on the minds of his parting guests of the gracious character of the Sultan, of his kindly feelings toward their country, and his earnest desire to cultivate the most cordial relations between his Empire and the United States of America. His Majesty spoke in terms of high appreciation of the internal improvements made in the United States, and alluded to the surprising manner in which California had become so populous a part of the American Union and its close connection with the more distant countries of China and Japan. With regard to the efforts at improvement which, under His Majesty's commands and auspices, are being made in Constantinople and the Empire generally, the Sultan said that he attributed the comparatively slow results to the circumstance that old countries were more difficult to improve than new ones, where there were no old habits to be changed or eradicated. His Majesty expressed the hope that in a few more years he would be able to effect many changes here in the streets, in the architecture of the houses, and in the means of communication throughout the Empire. To Lieut. GRANT's expression of great thanks for His Majesty's graciousness and kindness, the Sultan said that he regretted he could not do more for him to show his friendly feelings for the President of the United States and the American nation. As at this season the weather in the Black Sea is very uncertain, the Sultan, being aware of the intention of his guests to visit Sebastopol, he placed at their disposal his fine and powerful steam yacht, the Sultanieh, which, he remarked, is large enough even to cross the Atlantic Ocean—an act of thoughtful consideration and kindness on the part of His Majesty which was duly acknowledged by Gen. SHERMAN and Lieut. GRANT. The American Minister took occasion to express his grateful acknowledgments to His Majesty for his great goodness to his (Mr. BOKER's) countrymen, and assured His Majesty that his most noble hospitality would be largely appreciated by the Government and people of the United States, and the news of it would be spread far and wide over the whole North American continent by means of the innumerable telegraphs the country possessed. Mr. BOKER assured His Majesty that it would be the earnest hope and desire of the people of the United States to be allowed the high privilege of being permitted an opportunity to make some return, however inadequate, to any member of His Majesty's family or Government who might visit the States. Gen. SHERMAN likewise thanked the Sultan for all his kindness to him, assuring His Majesty that the remembrance of his pleasant visit to Stamboul and the beautiful Bosphorus could never in the slightest degree be effaced by his visits to any other parts of the world, however attractive. His Imperial Majesty reconducted his American guests to the foot of the staircase, where he bade them farewell in the most gracious and kindly manner.

THE METHODIST CONFERENCE.

Yesterday's Proceedings—The Book Concern Again—Important Resolutions Tabled.

The Methodist General Conference met at the usual hour yesterday morning, Bishop AMES presiding. Dr. F. G. HIBBARD, of East Genessee led the devotional exercises. The audience was thin at the opening, but increased gradually until the Academy was well filled. The Chair announced the reception of a note from Bishop JANES, stating that his health is slowly recovering, and that he hopes to be with the Conference soon. The memorial services of deceased Bishops, which were to take place on Friday, were, upon the receipt of this intelligence, postponed until Saturday, in hopes that Bishop JANES may be present. The time for the reception of fraternal delegates of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Canada was fixed for today at 11 A. M. The usual routine of business in relation to memorials, petitions, &c., was then taken up.

Several changes were made in the members of the different Committees, and the call for resolutions and miscellaneous business followed. Under this head a document was offered recommending a week of prayer in May. A resolution was offered, signed by fifty-eight members of the Conference, commending the itinerancy system, and recommending its fostering; also, recommending some provision for superannuated ministers; that ministers should be supported, as far as possible, by voluntary contributions. The resolution also touched upon the government of the Church. It was ordered to be laid upon the table and printed, by the President, in the absence of any objection. A resolution was offered by Rev. Mr. JACOBY, recommending the support, by the Board of Missions, of superannuated missionaries, or their families, after the decease of the head. A resolution to prevent the solemnization of marriage where one of the parties has been divorced, unless the divorce was granted on the ground of adultery, was offered and referred.

Dr. LINDSAY presented the quadrennial report of the Board of Education, which was referred and ordered to be printed in the Daily Advocate. Dr. CURRY, of New-York, East, offered a resolution, which was adopted by the Conference, requesting the agents of the Book Concern to furnish exhibits of the cost of the various Church papers as soon as possible, for the information of the Conference and Book Committee. As Dr. WISEMAN and Rev. Mr. PUNSHON were unable to remain much longer with the Conference, Bishop SIMPSON asked the Conference to listen to parting words from the British delegates. Dr. WISEMAN said he had but a few words to say. He thanked the Conference for the reception they had given both himself and companions, and hoped they would appoint delegates to the coming British Conference. He thanked the Conference for their kindness, and closed with a hearty "God bless you." Rev. Mr. PUNSHON followed, indorsing the remarks of his brother, and thanking the Conference for its courtesy, and expressing his gratification at the prosperous condition of the Methodist Church of America. Rev. Mr. SUTHERLAND also took leave of the delegates of the Conference in a few well-chosen remarks. Bishop AMES then asked leave of the Conference to address the British delegates, and give them a parting hand on behalf of the General Conference. Loud cries of "Yes! yes!" arose from all parts of the house, and Bishop AMES advancing, shook the hands of the British delegates in a heartfelt manner, and addressed them cordially and hopefully in view of the separation.

Dr. THAYER was substituted for Dr. WARREN as speaker in the memorial services for deceased Bishops on Saturday. It was resolved to appoint a committee of three to visit the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, which holds a meeting in New-York this week, and extend the sympathy and greetings of the Conference. A resolution was presented asking that a committee of one be appointed from each book district to pass upon the question, "Ought the Hymn-book of the Methodist Church to be revised?" The Conference voted the appointment of such a committee. The following resolution was then offered by Rev. Mr. PRICE:

Whereas, The long and bitter controversy which has been carried on in reference to the management of the affairs of the Book Concern of the Methodist Episcopal Church in New-York, involving charges of carlessness, mismanagement and fraud, has had a tendency to injure the character of certain persons connected therewith, and to cripple the usefulness and efficiency of the institution; and,

Whereas, The impression prevails to an alarming degree that there has been, and is now, a disposition to cover up whatever of wrong practices there may have been, and to smother investigation and to screen the guilty; therefore, be it

Resolved, By the representatives of the Methodist Episcopal Church, in General Conference assembled, that we insist upon and demand a full, thorough and searching investigation, without fear, favor or affection of any or all parties, and of all the transactions of such Book Concern which may, directly or indirectly, lead to a disclosure of all the facts connected with this case.

Resolved, That as the members of the General Conference, to whom is intrusted, for the time being, the vast and varied interests of the Church, we pledge ourselves to leave nothing in our power undone to correct whatever wrongs may exist, and to punish to the utmost of our ability any and all who may be found guilty.

Resolved, That we deeply regret the existence of contention, and are exceedingly anxious that strife should cease and that harmony and concord should once more prevail. Yet we are determined that the motto by which we shall be governed in this matter shall be "first pure, then peaceable."

Rev. Mr. PRICE then spoke strongly in favor of the passage of the resolution. He said that the dignity of the Church is at stake. He had been confronted with the insinuation that the Methodist Church did not act up to its professions and principles in the investigation of the irregularities and alleged frauds of the Book Concern. He said that it was a tremendous injury to the power and influence of Methodism to allow even the suggestion of such things; that it was a question of principle, and the Conference must decide without fear or favor in regard to every mooted point, and let the Methodist Church throughout the length and breadth of the land know that it represented it fairly and conscientiously. The Conference, he said, could not afford to let it be known that it wavered upon the declaration of principles. He said that there was no danger of religious papers misrepresenting, but the great secular Press of the country will spread broadcast whatever is done by the Conference, and it must not waver or hesitate, as by so doing an incalculable injury might be done to the interests of Methodism. He concluded by calling upon the Conference to make a bold stand, and show the people and world that Methodism is true, and does not hesitate to avow its principles and put down corruption and the charges of mismanagement and fraud.

Dr. HIBBARD, of East Genessee, spoke strongly in favor of smothering the resolution. There is no need, he said, of vaunting of courage and putting on a show of bravery just before entering upon a battle. He said that it is better to show the world what the Conference will do by deeds and not by words, as the true criterion by which the action of the Conference will be judged. He said that the Conference cannot afford to yield to the panic which the public would force upon it. This great cry has been started, he continued, by those who have little interest or connection with the Church.

A motion was made to allow the mover to withdraw the resolution, but he emphatically said he would not withdraw it, and would put it before the Conference and let it stand or fall.

A motion was then made amid great excitement, to lay the motion on the table. A score of delegates were upon the floor and attempted to make themselves heard, but the Chair decided that no discussion of the resolution was allowed under the motion to lay it on the table, and a vote was taken which resulted in the resolution being tabled. After the transaction of some unimportant business, the Conference adjourned.

American Dramatic Fund Association.

The members of the American Dramatic Fund Association held their annual meeting yesterday at No. 842 Broadway, and received the reports of the year's business, showing receipts, $4,925 45; expenditures, $5,088 06; balance of expenditures over receipts, $162 61. The number of claimants for assistance during the year, 60; stock held by the Association, $51,147 27. After the reports had been acted upon, the following officers were elected for 1872-3: President, S. L. M. Barlow; Trustees, Wm. C. Alexander, D. Kingsland, W. R. Travers, James Bryce, J. Brougham; Treasurer, C. K. Mason; Secretary, C. S. Bernard; Directors, W. J. Florence, F. Chippendale, J. H. Stoddart, H. Isherwood, Wm. Davidge, John Moore, W. B. Harrison, W. R. Denham, F. S. Chanfrau, C. W. Couldock, A. Grossi, T. J. Hind, T. E. Morris, D. Whiting, D. B. Anderson. The election was conducted without excitement.

Discharge of Michael Hayes, the Alleged Murderer of James O'Donnell—The Principal Witness Allowed to Escape.

In the Court of General Sessions, yesterday, before Recorder HACKETT, the case of MICHAEL HAYES, against whom an indictment was found for the murder of JAMES O'DONNELL on the 17th of May, 1857, was called on for trial. The case was placed on the calendar no less than eight times, but in each instance the principal witness, a man named ROCHESTER, did not put in an appearance. A week ago the case was last called, and the Recorder set it down peremptorily for yesterday, intimating that if ROCHESTER was not in attendance the prisoner would be discharged. When the case was called the witness did not answer, and counsel for the prisoner moved for his release, in accordance with the promise of the Court. Assistant District-Attorney FELLOWES, who represented the District-Attorney, did not oppose the motion. He said that ROCHESTER had been in Court since the last adjournment, but in such a state of intoxication that his statements were altogether unreliable. The most singular fact in connection with this case is, that there were several opportunities of holding ROCHESTER in the House of Detention until the trial actually took place, but these were never availed of. The excuse appeared to be that "he did not wish to be detained," and thus an indictment for a capital offense was permitted to fall through. HAYES, who is well known in the politics of the Seventh Ward, was discharged on his own recognizance. Had ROCHESTER not been a Tammany politician, it is probable that "Col." FELLOWES would have sent him to the House of Detention, and thus secured his attendance to prosecute; but being a useful member of the Tammany gang, he was, of course, excused, as "he did not wish to be detained."

CIVIC AFFAIRS.

The Board of Aldermen and of Supervisors.

The weekly meeting of the Board of Aldermen was held yesterday afternoon, the President in the chair. As there were only ten members present, merely ordinary routine business, involving no considerable expenditure of money, was transacted.

The Board adjourned to Monday next.

The Board of Supervisors met at 5 P. M. yesterday, the Mayor presiding.

Supervisor GILSEY, Chairman of the Committee on Armories and Drill-rooms, presented a resolution recommending the allowance of $500,000 for armories during the year. It was adopted.

It was resolved to execute leases of premises as follows:

Nos. 7, 9 and 11 West Thirteenth-street, for the purposes of armories and drill-rooms, for the term of ten years and eight months from Sept. 1, 1871, at an annual rent of $6,000 to May 1, 1872, and thereafter at an annual rent of $7,500. Rooms Nos. 1, 2 and 3 in building No. 371 Broadway, for purposes of Recorder's chambers, for one year from May 1, 1872, at an annual rent not to exceed $2,000.

The Controller was authorized and directed to pay such rents.

The resolution ordering $4,000 for repairs of Twenty-second Regiment armory was adopted. The Board then adjourned until Monday next at 5 P. M.

The Board of Assistant Aldermen.

The Board of Assistant Aldermen met at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, the President in the chair, and the following members present at the roll-call: Messrs. Foley, O'Brien, Robinson, Healy, Kraus, Coddington, Strack, Wade, Connor, Littlefield, Simonson, Cumisky and Schwartz.

A resolution was introduced by Assistant Alderman CONNOR, directing the Committee on Public Works to prepare an ordinance regulating and fixing the rate of wages per day (eight hours) to be paid laborers on the public works and other departments in this City.

Mr. O'CONNOR said that the bill investing the Common Council had already passed the Senate, and he was assured it would pass the Assembly yesterday, and receive the Governor's assent. In order, therefore, that no delay should take place in giving the laborers its benefit at once, be submitted the resolution. The resolution was adopted by a unanimous vote.

Assistant Alderman CONNOR also introduced the following preamble and resolution, which were adopted:

Whereas, A bill has passed both Houses of the Legislature, and is now before the Governor, the object of which is to permit the building of an elevated railroad over Third-avenue; and

Whereas, The property-owners on the line of said avenue, believing that their property would be greatly damaged by the construction of said railroad, protested against the passage of the bill; and

Whereas, All right to control and regulate the time and manner of the running of said railway trains is denied the Common Council in such bill; therefore

Resolved, That the Common Council protest to the Governor so that his signature may be withheld from said bill, and petition that he may veto the same.

A vote of concurrence was passed with the resolution adopted by the Board of Aldermen at their meeting of May 6, requesting the Controller to cease making payments to the street-cleaning contractor until the streets are decently cleaned.

The President presented a communication from GEORGE D. KELLY, who has been drawing salary as reader to the Board since its organization this year, but has been unable, through illness, it is said, to make his appearance even once in the Board as reader. Mr. KELLY presented his resignation, which was accepted with very little opposition, and the President appointed THOMAS E. BARRY in his stead. The Board adjourned without doing any further business deserving publicity.

The Street-Cleaning Commission.

The Street-Cleaning Commission held a private meeting yesterday evening, Mayor HALL presiding, to discuss the bill now before the Legislature in relation to street-cleaning in the City of New-York. They took up each section and considered it in relation to the sanitary state of the City and the preservation of the public health. What decision, if any, was come to by the Commission, was not made known.

The Commissioners of Sinking Fund.

The Commissioners of Sinking Fund held a meeting yesterday afternoon, present Mayor Hall, Controller Green, Chamberlain Palmer, Recorder Hackett, Alderman Pinckney, Mr. Dyttmar and Corporation Counsel Richard O'Gorman. Messrs. Wm. Kennelly and Isaac Ludlum, appraisers, reported on the petition of FRANCIS A. LEGGET for a renewal of lease of the premises No. 42 Chatham-street, now held at $13,500 a year, that the premises were worth $27,000. The Chamberlain said he thought they were worth $35,000, but some of the members thought that too high an estimate. The matter was referred to the Corporation Counsel to be granted if approved. The Board adopted a petition authorizing the Controller to postpone sine die the sale of leases of City ferries, which was advertised for to-morrow.

Bonded Warehouses for Tobacco—Memorial to Congress from the Chamber of Commerce.

The Chamber of Commerce, in accordance with a resolution passed at a recent meeting, has caused the following memorial to Congress to be engrossed, and it was forwarded to Washington yesterday afternoon:

To the Honorable the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America, in Congress assembled:

May it please your honorable body, the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New-York respectfully represents: That the internal revenue bonded warehouses as at present existing, admitting of the storage of tobacco and snuff in bond, and their withdrawal for export transportation or home consumption, are indispensable to the legitimate and proper conduct of this important branch of commerce at this port; that the Chamber regards the change proposed in the Tax bill before your honorable body, viz., the abolition of internal revenue bonded warehouses for the storage of manufactured tobacco and snuff in bond, and in lieu thereof the establishment of a system of drawback on tobacco exported, as inimical to the best interests of the trade. They most earnestly ask the retention of the system of bonded warehouses, and also recommend that this system be extended to all other ports of entry, in order that all sections of the country may be placed on an equality. Requesting from your honorable body the consideration the importance of the subject demands, your memorialists will ever pray.

W. E. DODGE, President.

GEORGE WILSON, Secretary.

The counting will probably be finished today.

MONDAY, May 13—P. M.

The week opens brightly in the Wall-street markets. The Stock Exchange, which closed with a decided upward turn on Saturday Afternoon, was further stimulated by the London and Washington Telegrams in regard to the Treaty. The hitch in the negotiations is believed to be removed, and the strong hope is that a day or two will remove all doubt as to amicable and successful arbitration at Geneva. The news is received with much satisfaction, aside from its immediate effect on trade and financial affairs. It is not the less welcome because coming so soon after the business public had made up their minds that the Treaty was at an end for the present.

The first marked influence of the political change was felt upon Gold this morning; the sales running down from 114⅛ ₩ cent., as at the close on Saturday, to 113⅞ ₩ cent. The Public Funds advanced at the same time under large purchases by the leading dealers, while the feeling in Exchange circles was that a less Gold export will now probably be required to bring down our adverse trade balances this Summer, because of renewed active remittances in the United States and other American Bonds. The rates for bills are not lower than on Saturday, nor are they likely to fall much below the Gold shipping points, at a season when, in addition to the usual trade wants of Exchange, the traveling credits to American tourists abroad form no inconsiderable element in the demand.

At the Stock Exchange the morning business, which was large, was very decidedly bullish, and the prices of the New-York and Western Roads higher than at the close on Saturday, and the same firmness both in demand and prices was shown on Pacific Mail and Western Telegraph. The market is strengthened, in a certain measure, by the heavy short lines put out on the bearish feeling of last week, as a good many of the smaller operators in this direction, finding their mistake as to the course of the speculation, hasten to cover their contracts, some of them, as usual in sudden changes, shifting to the opposite side and running with the prevailing current.

At and after the Second Board, Pacific Mail took the lead in the advance, and almost excluded the rest of the list. The transactions were very large—considerably over 70,000 shares—and the price moved up from 77⅞ at 1 P. M. to 82½ at 3½ P. M. The extreme rise of the day was from 76⅛, and equalled 5⅛ ₩ cent. The effect of the bill becoming law to authorize reduction of the stock to $10,000,000 stimulated purchases, both for new ventures and for the closing of short accounts. Panama advanced nearly as much, though with light transactions, selling at 116@120@119½. The rest of the market was generally strong; and the other instances of special strength were Erie, rising to 70⅛@⅞, and the St. Paul stocks, which advanced, under an apparently new inquiry, to 60½ for the Common and 80 for the Preferred. Union Pacific was suddenly depressed from 39⅞ to 39⅛, by a revival in Congress of measures to reverse last year's settlement of the policy of the Treasury with reference to business with the Pacific roads, and the interest on the Currency Sixes advanced to aid in their construction.

The increasing hopefulness as to the issue of the Treaty negotiations told still further upon Gold in the afternoon, sales falling to 113⅝, but quotations rallying later to 113⅞@113¾.

The business in the Public Funds continued good in the afternoon, and the latest sales were the best of the day.

Money was 5 and 6 ₩ cent. until between 2 and 3 o'clock, when the closing demand advanced the rate as far as coin interest.

BANKING AND FINANCIAL.

☞ NORTHERN PACIFIC
7.30 GOLD BONDS.

The Northern Pacific Railroad is being rapidly constructed, and when in complete operation will traverse for a thousand miles the finest wheat-growing country of the North—through fertile lands and rich valleys, lying in the midst of a temperate climate, with immense deposits of mineral wealth included in its landed possessions, all of which offer the highest inducements to the speedy settlement and development of that most productive and valuable section of our country.

The security offered to investors in the 7.30 gold bonds of the Company is ample and satisfactory, the bonds being a first lien on the great Railroad and its traffic, besides being a FIRST and ONLY Mortgage on the valuable lands at the rate of 50 acres to every $100 issued by it.

The vast profits that must result to the NORTHERN PACIFIC ROAD when in complete working order, is a guarantee of the profitableness of the investment, while the safeguards thrown around the security of the loan render it of absolute safety, only second to the security offered by the Government loans, which return but little over one-half the income assured to the holders of Northern Pacific 7.30 gold interest bonds, which are being sold by us at par and accrued interest in currency.

EGGS—Have been rather more confidently inquired for at steadier rates, ranging from 15c.@17c., as to marks.

FLOUR AND MEAL—State and Western Flour has been quoted a shade firmer on reduced offerings of desirable lots, but has been less active, the trade call having been on a restricted scale, and the demand from other sources light. GRAIN—Wheat has been in less request, and though opening rather stronger it closed heavily, influenced in part by somewhat freer offerings, the decline in gold, and the increasing firmness in ocean freights. GUNNY BAGS AND BAGGING—Bags continue in limited request at 16c.@17c.; Bagging at 14½c.@15½c., and Domestic do. at 15½c.@16½c.

HARDWARE—Has been in generally fair request, and quite firm, as to price, with the advantage in favor of sellers, on very light offerings of most kinds of stock.

HAY—Bale Hay has been in brisk request and on the advance ranging from $1 75@$1 85 for shipping, and $1 85@$2 25 for local use, ₱ 100 lbs.; holders offer stock very reservedly, looking for even higher rates. Clover Hay, $1 40@$1 50. Straw in demand at from 60c.@65c.@$1 35 for the range of quality, Short and Long, ₱ 100 lbs.

LATHS—Have been in moderate demand on the basis of $2 25 ₱ thousand.

LIME—Rockland has been salable and steady, and quoted at $1 50 for Common, and $2 for Lump ₱ bbl.

MOLASSES—The market has been dull throughout, today, and sales have been reported of only 50 bbls. New-Orleans, at 70c.@74c. ₱ gallon. Values quoted about as before: Porto Rico at 35c.@60c.; Cuba, 33c.@38c.; English Islands, 25c.@35c., and New-Orleans, 40c.@76c., ₱ gallon.

PETROLEUM—Holders have been offering stock with reserve, and generally insisting on full prices, checking business. The demand has been quite moderate....Crude has been inactive at 13½c.@13¾c., in bulk, and 17½c.@17¾c., in shipping order....Naphtha quiet and irregular in price....Refined Petroleum has been less active, with Standard White quoted at 24c.@24¼c., closing at 24c. for early deliveries; sales have been reported of 2,000 bbls., prompt delivery, at 24¼c.; 2,000 bbls., May delivery, at 24c., an extreme rate; 2,000 bbls., June, at 24c. And at Philadelphia, 2,000 bbls., May delivery, at 23⅝c.@23¾c., showing a less firm market toward the close....Refined, in cases, quoted at 29½c.@30c., but dull.

PROVISIONS—There has been a moderate jobbing call for Pork, for early delivery, chiefly for Mess, and Extra Prime, at somewhat steadier prices. Sales have been reported of 950 bbls. at $13 90@$14 for New Western Mess; $13 12½@$13 25 for Prime Mess, and $11 for prime, ₱ bbl. For forward delivery, the demand has been on a restricted scale, with sales reported since our last of only 500 bbls. Western Mess, seller August, at $14 25 ₱ bbl....City-dressed Hogs continue inactive at 5½c. ₱ lb....Cut Meats have been in more demand, ranging at from 9¾c.@10¼c. for Dry-salted and Sweet-pickled Hams; 11½c. for bagged Hams, in tight tierces, and 5¾c.@6c. for Shoulders, chiefly 5 7-16c. for (600 pks.) May delivery; and 7¼c.@8½c. for Bellies, ₱ lb. The reported sales since our last are 800 pks. within the range....Bacon has been rather more sought after, but the bids have been unsatisfactory to holders, who have been claiming a shade better prices: 175 boxes Long Clear sold on private terms....Lard has been quoted steady, but has been in comparatively moderate request, for early delivery. Sales have been reported of 1,170 tcs. and bbls., for early delivery, at 8⅝c.@9¾c. for No. 1 to choice Steam and Kettle-rendered, chiefly at 9⅛c.@9⅜c. for good to prime, and 9¾c. for very choice Western Steam; 9⅝c.@9¾c. for Kettle; 8⅞c. for good City Steam and Kettle; 8¾c.@8⅞c. for No. 1, and 9⅜c.@9⅞c. for Refined. For forward delivery the demand has been less active, with sales reported of 1,750 tcs. prime Western Steam, including 750 tcs., seller May, at 9⅜c.@9 7-16c.; 1,000 tcs., seller June, at 9½c.@9 9-16c., ₱ lb....Beef has been moderately inquired for in a jobbing way, at from $7@$9 50 for Mess, $9 50@$12 for Extra Mess; sales, 170 bbls. Tierce Beef has been dull and nominal at from $14@$18 for Prime Mess, $17@$20 for India Mess, ₱ tierce. Beef Hams continue very quiet at $22@$27 as the extremes....The better grades of Butter meet with a comparatively ready sale at firm prices. New Western is not in much favor, as the offerings as a rule are not attractive, either as to quality or condition. We quote within the range from 25c.@35c. for ordinary to very choice new State, and 18c.@27c. for new Western; Grease Butter, 7½c.@9½c. ₱ lb....Really marketable lots of Cheese are in good demand for home use and shipment, within the range of 14c.@17c. for old State Factory, 9c.@15½c. for Western, and 6c.@15c. for new, with the chief dealings in the latter within the range of 11c.@14c. ₱ lb. Much of the available supply of old is in damaged condition and difficult to market.

SALT—Has been in demand and quoted steady, including Turk's Island, 40c.@42c.; Liverpool Ground, $1 40@$1 50; Liverpool Fine at $2 20@$3 10 ₱ sack, from store; Syracuse at $1 25; Burlaps at $1 25; Factory Filled at $2 15@$2 25; Bulk at 35c.@38c.; Coarse at 45c.

SALTPETRE—Has attracted but little attention, yet has been quoted at 10c.@10½c., gold.

SPICES—Have been in limited request, as a rule, within our range, including No. 1 Nutmegs at 94c.@96c.; Mace, $1 20@$1 25; Cassia, 27½c.@28c.; White Pepper, 36c.; East India Pepper at 17½c.@18½c.; Ginger, 11c.@11½c.; Pimento at 11¾c.; Cloves, 16½c., gold, ₱ lb.

SUGARS—Raw have been offered with less freedom, and have been quoted rather stronger, on a good demand, chiefly for the better grades of refining stock; sales, —— hhds., including 1,162 hhds. about fair to prime refining Cuba, at 8 11-16c.@9⅛c.; 660 hhds. low grade Centrifugal at 9⅛c.@9⅜c., nearly all at 9¼c.; and 20 hhds. Guadaloupe at 10 11-16c. ₱ lb. We quote: Fair Refining Cuba at 8¾c.; good do. at 9c.: prime do. at 9⅛c.; Refining Porto Rico, common to prime, at 8c.@9⅛c.; grocery grades Porto Rico, fair to strictly choice, 9⅛c.@10¼c. ₱ lb.; No. 12 Clayed Box Sugar at 9⅝c.; Manila, in bags, 7¾c.@8⅜c. for superior to extra superior. Refined Sugars have been in active demand at 10½c.@12½c. as the extremes.

TALLOW—Has been in reduced stock, and held above the views of buyers, checking operations. Sales have been reported of 105,000 lbs. at 9⅛c.@9⅝c. for ordinary to prime, chiefly at 9⅝c., which price was bid at the close.

WHISKY—Has been in moderate request on the basis of 89c. ₱ gallon, with sales reported of 220 bbls., in lots.

WOOL—The general market shows very little animation. The offerings of other than the choicest grades of domestic have been somewhat freer on the basis of asking prices, but the principal holders have not been indisposed to make any concessions of moment. The demand is quite moderate, for all purposes. Manufacturers are reserved in their bids, and not willing to purchase beyond the limits of actual and urgent wants; especially they seem dissatisfied with the course of the market for woolen goods, which, though reported firm, exhibits very little life. A moderate movement is noted in foreign Wools, which are generally held with confidence, in view of the favorable foreign advices. From Boston the report, according to the Commercial Bulletin of that city, is of a very tame market, "the sales footing up much smaller than last reported. In fact, with a stringent money market and a slack demand for goods, buyers are not disposed to operate beyond their immediate requirements. Such of them as are temporarily supplied are now holding off for developments in regard to the tariff and the probable cost of the new clip. Holders who are receiving large invoices of foreign are disposed to make a little concession in order to realize promptly. But it is hardly probable that wool values will fall to a much lower range for the present, especially if the indications of a speedy easing off in the money market are realized, and gold continues to advance. Thus far this advance has been about offset by the prospect of 10 ₱ cent. reduction in the tariff rates. But the stock is small, and a long time must yet elapse before the new domestic clip will be available for manufacturing purposes, as the shearing will be late, and with the present extreme views of growers, the crop is not likely to be marketed in a hurry. Before that time shall arrive, most manufacturers will be compelled to renew their stocks of raw material, and many of them will have to come in several times; thence we look for an active demand and a little reaction in prices before the close of the season. The latest dispatches from San Francisco do not confirm the previous reports of a sharp decline in the California markets. Choice lots of Northern are still quoted at 52c.@53c., gold, but buyers are not operating freely."

FREIGHTS—There has been rather more firmness noted in Grain rates, on berth, on a reduced supply of room, and a fair inquiry for accommodation. Outside the Grain offerings, a very limited business has been reported at about former figures. In the way of charter there has been a slow movement, vessels having been less sought after for the Grain trade and quite sparingly inquired for the Petroleum trade, with quotations essentially as before. Vessels for general cargo have been in light request. ....For Liverpool, the reported engagements, since our last, have been, by steam, 39,000 bushels Grain at 4½d., mostly Corn; 7,800 bushels Grain at 4¾d. ₱ bushel; 100 tons Oil-cake at 15s, and 180 pks. Provisions at 15s. And from Baltimore, by steam, 8,000 bushels Grain, on private terms. The New-York Times.

DAILY, WEEKLY AND SEMI-WEEKLY.

This journal is now thoroughly identified with the greatest political necessity of the hour—uncompromising warfare against all forms of corruption, whether in national or local government. For years past the TIMES has been exposing the demoralizing schemes of self-interested politicians, and its recent warfare upon the Tammany Democrats has been received with universal approval. It has adhered to the pledge given in its original prospectus, more than twenty years ago, that the public should be truly represented, and their interests faithfully guarded through its columns. Its record has been pure and honorable, and the highest aim of its proprietors is to render it more and more worthy of its past history, and of the confidence which the public repose in it. Two out of three of the original proprietors still direct its policy, and guide it on all public questions. They purpose that the TIMES shall continue to keep clear of all narrow and unworthy influences and cliques, and aim to represent the great body of the public, as distinguished from personal factions. It occupies a perfectly independent position, and is free to speak the truth on all subjects and about all men. Its greatly increased circulation throughout the country adds to its power and influence. It will continue to be a faithful exponent of Republican principles, recognizing the claims of American industry in adjusting the sources of revenue; and it will advocate with untiring energy every cause which tends to further the welfare of the people.

A very full summary of news, and many general articles of great interest, are published in the Semi-weekly editions; and in the Weekly edition there is an unabridged report of the proceedings at the Farmers' Club, an excellent summary of political information, and a great variety of matter suitable for family reading.

Mr. Congressman VOORHEES, of Indiana, cannot be counted on for the Greeley coalition. He made a frank declaration of his views in the House yesterday, and astonished some of his colleagues by the record of Mr. GREELEY, which he mercilessly exposed. They had some of them forgotten that Mr. GREELEY has sustained or proposed every measure denounced by the Democrats as showing a tendency to centralization, and especially the Election law and the Kuklux law. From his standpoint, VOORHEES held that GREELEY was worse that Gen. GRANT, for what the latter had executed, as by his oath he was compelled to, when made law by Congress, the former had urged on Congress of his own choice. Mr. VOORHEES' course is marked by two qualities excessively inconvenient to a coalition Democrat—conscience and logic.

The House of Representatives, under the skillful and bold lead of Mr. DAWES, is rapidly reaching a practical conclusion of the tariff question, which will leave no cause for complaint on the part of any reasonable Republican. The House yesterday sustained Mr. DAWES by a vote of more than two-thirds, in a demand for a close of the debate on Thursday. This shows a readiness on the part of the House to do what we have steadily urged it to do—embody in acts the revenue reform which the Cincinnati Convention did not dare even to promise.

From Mr. GLADSTONE'S explanation in the House of Commons, last night, it appears that the first approach to a renewed understanding between the two Governments on the Treaty of Washington, was brought about by a proposal from Minister SCHENCK that notes should be interchanged, setting forth the terms and conditions whereon both countries would agree to proceed to arbitration. The Foreign Affairs Committee of the Senate has now before it the full text of what may be called the English ultimatum. Mr. GLADSTONE talks a good deal more confidently about the favorable indorsement of that document than we can, as yet, afford to do. It is obviously the duty of the representatives of public opinion in both countries to refrain from hampering the parties to this delicate negotiation, by criticisms, which, being necessarily based on imperfect knowledge, can serve no good purpose. Even the Tory opposition in Great Britain has declared, through Mr. DISRAELI, its resolution to abstain from any attempt to extract a partisan advantage from the present stage of the controversy. It is not unreasonable to express a hope that the opponents of President GRANT'S Administration may be as capable of patriotic self-denial as Mr. DISRAELI.

The Committee appointed to investigate into the Seneca Sand-stone business have concluded, with no dissenting voice, that there is no wrong in it. But this truth, which has just got on its boots, will never catch up with the swift lie started two months ago to blacken the fame of the President by connecting him with an alleged Sand-stone Ring. There were too many vicious men interested in helping on the falsehood to allow it to be readily overtaken.

Superintendent MILLER has saved the Legislature the trouble of removing him, by handing in his resignation. It will thus be seen that Mr. GREELEY'S private letter on behalf of MILLER, for the existence of which the Albany Evening Journal vouches, has failed to produce the desired result. In addition to the resolution for MILLER'S removal, the Assembly passed a resolution calling on the Attorney-General to recover from MILLER the fees illegally withheld from the State. We trust that the latter resolution will still be acted on, though the resignation of the Insurance Superintendent leaves no necessity for acting on the former.

Messrs. ALVORD, HUSTED and VEDDER appear to have taken up a good deal of the time of the Assembly, yesterday evening, in denouncing the TIMES. We never imagined that our strictures upon the course of the majority at Albany would be relished by the members to whom they referred. These strictures have been solely prompted by the public interests, and it will be exceedingly difficult for those who have winced under them to show that the claims of the community, which the Legislature was elected to serve, have been injured by our advocacy. That our criticisms upon the constitution of the Board of Impeachment Managers were fully deserved, received emphatic illustration in the refusal of the Assembly, last night, to associate Mr. TILDEN in the prosecution of charges which he has done so much to mature. Mr. PRINCE ought to be a very good judge of the necessity of having Mr. TILDEN associated with the Impeachment Managers, and we greatly prefer his approval and that of the forty-eight members who voted with him, to the opinion of the fifty-two members who voted on the other side. The public may at least be congratulated on this, that Mr. ALVORD and his aggrieved associates have been compelled to make such professions of zeal and impartiality as they cannot very readily recede from.

"Making the Best of it."

There are some Liberal Republicans who, though deeply disgusted at what was done at Cincinnati, are trying to "make the best of it." We commend to these gentlemen a careful study of the present state of affairs at Albany, in order that they may determine what "the best" is. There can be none of them that do not know of Judge BARNARD, his notorious offenses, and the incalculable injury he has inflicted on the whole American community. There can be none of them that have not suffered in the damage done to American repute in all the civilized countries of the world by the belief, for which BARNARD is responsible, that the highest Judiciary of our greatest commercial City has been in league with thieves, and the willing tool of public and private peculators. Every one has shared the general indignation at the impunity with which this man has pursued his course, protected by the Legislature, his powers constantly increased, and, secure in the suffrages—real or fraudulent—of the degraded and dangerous classes of our population. When the people had secured a strong Republican Legislature we supposed we were in a fair way to be rid of him. When a fair Judiciary Committee, including at least one able and upright Democrat, and a majority of true Republicans, had reported in favor of his impeachment, our hopes rose still higher, and when the Assembly by a heavy vote ordered his impeachment, we were confident that the end approached.

Our Liberal Republican friends, who have watched the proceedings so far, must have shared our encouragement. They will doubtless, therefore, share our disappointment and chagrin at learning that, thanks to a coalition between Greeley Republicans and Tammany Democrats, there is great danger that the Judge may escape. This coalition has succeeded in placing Mr. ALVORD at the head of the Board of Managers, and in associating with him all of the Judiciary Committee who were known not to be earnest in favor of impeachment; and it has, so far, succeded in having left out of the Board of Managers Mr. TILDEN, who is specially fitted to be a member, and three others of the Committee who have rendered good service in the investigation. We have looked in vain for any indignation from the Tribune upon this scandalous trick. In a mild way it deprecates a bargain which Mr. GREELEY'S Tammany managers have carried too far. It would not have had the cloven foot so plainly displayed. But when we remember the rage it fell into over the omission of Senator SCHURZ from the Arms Investigation Committee, we are struck with the amazing difference between its attitude then and now. The injustice which it falsely charged against the United States Senate has been actually perpetrated by the friends of the Cincinnati candidate in the State Assembly, but the Tribune has no trouble in suppressing harsh expressions on the subject.

We trust the men who are trying to "make the best of" Mr. GREELEY'S nomination, realize the company they have fallen into, and the extent and nature of the corruption and scoundrelism they are co-operating with. The Tammany men and the Greeley men at Albany are also "trying to make the best of it," and every time an honest man like Mr. SAMUEL BOWLES suppresses his indignation, and says a good word for their candidate, they rejoice at his self-denial, and make another move in their precious game. It may be that they will be checkmated in their efforts to save BARNARD by putting his prosecution into hands friendly to him. But if they are, it will only be because their tricks have been discovered, not because they hesitate in carrying them out to the end.

Nor is this the only enterprise they are engaged in. The same crew, part Democrats of the Tammany order, part Republicans of equally easy virtue, and all enthusiastic for GREELEY and BROWN, are trying their best to block the movement to bring TWEED, HALL & Co. to justice. To this end they have combined, led by ALVORD, to prevent the Legislature from passing over the Governor's veto, the Oyer and Terminer bill of Mr. TILDEN, which is essential in order to get a sturdy and impartial trial for the Tammany thieves. They may be defeated in this, also, but it will be because they are exposed. How do our dissatisfied Liberal Republicans like the company into which their efforts to swallow GREELEY and BROWN are bringing them? They joined the Cincinnati movement in the hope of uniting the best Democrats and the best Republicans on a common ground of reform. How does the union of TOM FIELDS and Mr. ALVORD, in a desperate struggle to save the Tammany leaders, and to secure Tammany patronage for the Cincinnati ticket, satisfy that hope? How does A. D. BARBER, the most brazen and disgusting professional lobbyist in the land, please them as the business manager of the new partnership between "the best men of both parties?" They had a taste of what a Greeley-Fenton Administration would be likely to produce in the way of political trickery at Cincinnati. We presume that the gentlemen whom "Gen." JOHN COCHRANE marshaled there left a vivid sense of their positive character and potent influence in the minds of the helpless decent men who were overthrown on the floor of the Convention. How do the later recruits impress the sincere reformers? They did not like FENTON and COCHRANE. Are they better suited with BARNARD, and OAKEY HALL, and TWEED, and the rest of them? And one question more; if Mr. GREELEY is so easily enlisting all these rogues in his service, at the opening of the campaign, when he can offer them little but promises, what will happen if he gets a chance to pay them off in official patronage? Shall we not then have a pretty sample of "reform" in Government?

A Claim that Ought to be Paid.

The act known as Assembly bill No. 965 now awaits its final passage in the lower House of the Legislature. That bill, in addition to other small claims, provides for the payment of some seventeen thousand dollars in discharge of salary, and part of the heavy legal expenses of Ex-Supervisor JOHN FOLEY, during his long and successful contest in the Courts with the Tammany Ring. Three years ago, Mr. FOLEY was elected a member of the old Board of Supervisors. That Board was, in its later days, notoriously under the dictation of TWEED. As it was understood that Mr. FOLEY would prove a very intractable member of this hopelessly corrupt body, Mayor HALL, with his accustomed deference to the dictation of TWEED, and his accustomed contempt of law in serving his associates, set aside the election of Mr. FOLEY in favor of that ductile Republican, HANK SMITH. The Ring Judges, of course, sustained the wrong, and Mr. FOLEY was forced to have recourse to the Legislature, then to the Governor and Attorney-General CHAMPLAIN. The Courts were once again appealed to, and the Ring spent tens of thousands of the people's money in trying to keep the one man who would not go shares with the President of the Board of Supervisors, out of his rights.

At last Mr. FOLEY succeeded in ousting SMITH, and taking his seat at the Board. This was equivalent to smashing the old machinery of plunder, and TWEED'S Charter of 1870 accordingly provided for the abandonment of a body of accomplices who had served their turn, and all of whom could be no longer relied on to pass Court-house and armory claims with their eyes shut. From that day to this, Mr. FOLEY has not touched a dollar of his salary as Supervisor, or any of the enormous legal expenses incurred, in what was truly the public service. HANK SMITH, the contestant who was ultimately defeated, did, however, receive the salary to which he had no claim, and about twenty thousand dollars besides, for lawyers who were employed to defeat the popular election of Mr. FOLEY.

Still more recently, the celebrated Foley injunction suit sounded the knell of the tyranny of the Ring, and prepared the way for the public investigation of its robberies, which following upon the TIMES disclosures, led to the popular victory of November last, the indictment of the public plunderers, and all that we have gained on behalf of Reform. When the general body of Reformers were trying to discover the vulnerable part of the Ring, Mr. FOLEY, profiting by his experience of the inner workings of the corrupt gang, went straight to the point, and obtained a victory which was as valuable as it was unexpected. Every property-owner and every taxpayer is appreciably richer and more secure by the series of events, in which Mr. FOLEY'S persistent hostility to TWEED and his confederates formed a very essential and important link. There can be no possible reason for asking a private citizen, who can but ill-afford it, to be largely out of pocket by the expenses of a contest fraught with advantages so valuable to the public. His salary as Supervisor is a claim which nobody will now dispute. His legal expenses in 1869 and in 1871, will be equally recognized by every honest citizen as a debt which should be cheerfully and promptly paid. Too much depends upon the public spirit and independence of individuals, in bringing official malefactors to justice, to render it safe or desirable to have it understood that the man who seeks to defend the public purse should have to sacrifice his own. Mr. FOLEY'S expenditure must have been nearer $40,000 than $17,000. Whatever it really was, ought to be at once paid, as an act of simple justice, and as an encouragement for others to do likewise, if the necessity should ever unfortunately arise for it.

Anthracite.

The anthracite tonnage this year has, thus far, been unusually large. We are glad of it—for two reasons. In the first place, the business itself is an exceedingly important one, and, in the second place, the facility with which coal can be obtained is, in its connection with manufacturing and commercial interests, a matter of immense and rapidly-increasing consequence.

The territory from which almost all our anthracite coal comes is, when compared with the amount and value of the product, a singularly small one. If any of our readers will take the trouble to cut from a piece of paper a rectangle representing on the map of Pennsylvania a space a hundred miles long and forty broad, they will find that by placing it with its length in a direction between north and north-east it can be made to cover the area from which we receive all but a small portion of our supply. In other words, all but comparatively little of what now constitutes the great bulk of fuel used for industrial and domestic purposes by the cities, large villages, and, to no inconsiderable extent, the rural districts, of the four Middle States and New-England, comes from a region less than half the size of New-Jersey.

The value of the anthracite coal carried over the various railroads and canals since the 1st of January, if reckoned at what its price is by the time it reaches the consumer, has been, on an average, not far from seven or eight million dollars a month, or about three-fourths the interest per month of the national debt. The number of persons supported by the business, including the wives and children of those employed in all its various branches, cannot be much short of five hundred thousand. Indeed, when we consider the number of men connected with the railroads, which are engaged principally in coal transportation, we are not sure that even this is not too small an estimate.

The amount of physical power required in the transportation of anthracite coal is a very interesting feature of the business. Its aggregate is literally stupendous. If we imagine a mountain in the form of a cone, a quarter of a mile in diameter at the base, and a thousand feet high, we shall get a pretty accurate idea of the bulk of anthracite which, at the rate up to the present time, will have been taken to market in the year 1872. And if we consider that this vast quantity of so heavy a substance as coal has been moved an average distance by land carriage of over a hundred miles—about one-sixth of it having in its journey been hauled by railroad from a deep valley up a grade formerly considered impracticable even for passenger trains, to an elevation of several hundred feet—we shall obtain no more than a fair idea of the motive-power which has been used. As an illustration of the physical force which the human mind can control by means of machinery, we know of few things which are more striking than such a transportation of so immense a quantity and weight of material.

It is somewhat remarkable that an article so intimately connected with civilization and wealth as anthracite coal should have so little effect upon the civilization and wealth of the part of the country it comes from. The population of the mining districts of Pennsylvania, though not so bad as some people think, is certainly on the whole by no means a model of what we expect in this land from the education and culture of the nineteenth century. Nor is the community there on an average particularly rich. The reason of these deficiencies is undoubtedly to be found in the character of the miners. They are as a class,—though with more exceptions than they generally get credit for,—so wasteful that they lay up but little of even the large wages they get, and so frequently riotous and disorderly, that men of property, even where their pecuniary interests would be greatly promoted by living near the mines, prefer, on account of the comfort of their families, and even sometimes from a needful regard to their own safety, to reside elsewhere. The question what gives the miners as a class their undesirable character, or why a man engaged in the honorable employment of providing fuel should be any less peaceable or economical than one who makes his living by producing wheat and potatoes, is one which we shall not here attempt to discuss, and which, perhaps, we should not be very successful in elucidating if we did attempt it. It is but justice to remark in this connection, that what we have said about the character of the miners in respect to good order, applies much less to some localities than others, and to a portion of them not at all.

Of all the anthracite coal sent to market, more than half comes—either for the purpose of being used here or forwarded to other places—to the vicinity of New-York. About two-thirds of the remainder goes to Philadelphia, the other third being distributed to Western New-York and various points in Pennsylvania. The advance of the neighborhood of New-York as compared with Philadelphia, in the trade, has of late years been very great; and is the more noticeable from being absolute and not merely comparative—the business in respect to the latter city showing no diminution, but on the contrary a steady and decided increase.

We have spoken of the plentiful supply of coal as a source of congratulation, on account of the importance of the business itself, and because of its relation to our manufacturing and commercial interests. Besides these two reasons for gratification, there is another, which, in some respects, is of more importance than either. The cost of fuel is often a very serious thing to the poor. It is an expense which comes upon them at just the time of year when they are commonly least able to bear it. As a matter of humanity, and a means of preventing a great deal of suffering, the present probability of a reasonable price of coal next Winter is a prospect which cannot fail to be eminently pleasing to any one who takes an interest in the mitigation of the burdens of poverty.

How Private Parks are Made Resorts for Thieves and Murderers.

The murder of the fireman, WM. KRAFT, at Hamilton Park, is the first evidence that comes to us to announce the opening of the picnic season. KRAFT had made himself obnoxious to a gang of roughs, and was set upon and beaten to death while on his way home. Last year several murders were perpetrated in precisely the same manner, and if something is not done by the Police Captains of the precincts in which the private parks are situated, the programme, from its beginning, gives promise of being more bloody this year than it has ever been.

Within the City limits there are from five to seven private parks, which produce a large revenue for their owners, through the amount of intoxicating drinks consumed in them. These parks are let long before the beginning of each season, to associations of young men having the distinguished title of social clubs. The members of some of the clubs are honest mechanics, who have rooms in the different wards, meet every evening for innocent amusement, and hold annual picnics for the purpose of replenishing their funds. The park-owners make no charge for the use of the grounds when the attendance happens to be good, and the consumption of liquor what they call lively. If the sale of viands and liquors has been "extra," then the officers of the fortunate clubs are encouraged by being presented with a percentage on the gross amount taken during the afternoon, evening, and night. The clubs provide their own music, and cover the general expenses by exacting from twenty-five to seventy-five cents per head admission for males. Females are allowed to enter free.

Now, if this kind of enjoyment were to be partaken of to a reasonable extent, no one could object; but, in the past, picnics have been, in reality, no better than drunken carouses, which almost invariably end in disgraceful fights. The young women are roughly treated, and young men often lose their lives in the attempt to protect them from outrage. Then there is another and still more dangerous class which uses this picnic system to organize bands of thieves for the purpose of prey. They adopt the style of the social clubs, and make arrangements for the use of the parks under fanciful names, such as "The Lone Stars," "The Congregated Fifty," "The Friendship Club No. 6," or "The Tallahoosa Threadbares." Attracted by the array of false names upon the posters, and the foot-note guaranteeing that "everything shall be conducted in the most recherché manner," young men and women who love to dance a break-down upon an open platform, and to camp under the spreading branches of trees, are easily induced to attend in large numbers. Until a very late hour at night or an early hour in the morning, the managers show themselves to be untiring in their exertions to make their guests as comfortable and happy as may be, but at a given signal, and when least expected, the music may suddenly cease, and the lights go out simultaneously.

Then a scene of disorder follows of the most indescribable nature. The sleek, oily-tongued managers of a minute ago rush among the crowds, and make a clean sweep of watches and purses, in such an adroit manner that the losses are not discovered until the losers have no possible power to force the thieves to disgorge. The whilom club officers form themselves into parties of tens and twenties, and rob every person they meet on the way to the Third-avenue Railroad Depot. Season after season the same scenes are re-enacted at different parks by the same set of scoundrels, who change the names of their clubs and officers to allay suspicion. The park-owners can scarcely be blamed for letting their grounds to such fellows, considering that they are so fertile in devices to deceive; but if there were as great a desire to protect customers as there is to make money, a way could easily be found to preserve order at the picnics, and to put a stop to thieving and bloodshed. To effect such a reform, it would be necessary to make it imperative that the orgies should be brought to a close at 11, or at the very latest 11½ o'clock at night. In addition to this rule, bar-keepers should be prohibited from furnishing liquors to partly-intoxicated persons. By precautions like these, coupled with the watchful care of the Police, it is possible that private parks and gardens may be made to serve the purposes for which they were originally intended,—that is, to afford hard-worked citizens an opportunity, (at a moderate expense,) to treat their families to a breath of fresh air during the warm weather.

Forest Fires.

Each year immense quantities of valuable timber are burned in the United States and Canada, but, fertile as is human ingenuity in providing against other disasters, in this it seems to be almost powerless. The rapid destruction of the forests is not the only loss. Houses and mills, bridges and fences to great value were last year swept away, cattle in many instances were victims to the flames, and, terrible to say, in some cases so likewise were human beings. The long drouths are, of course, the chief occasions of these conflagrations. Once kindled, the fire races madly on until it is either extinguished by men, which is rare, or until there is no material left to feed its fury.

At this moment fires are raging among some of the finest woods of the country. In Sullivan, Delaware, and Ulster Counties of this State, and in several parts of Pennsylvania, the flames are destroying the forests by the square mile, and our correspondent, writing from Port Jervis, writes that in various towns of the first-named county not only standing timber, but logs and manufactured lumber from the mills, have been burned in immense quantities. The inhabitants have abandoned their business to do battle with the fire, but they seem to make little headway, since, in the letter we quote, it is said that the universal prayer is for rain, as "copious falls of that alone" can stay the progress of the flames. In many places the mountains have been stripped as bare of trees as are the hills in some parts of Ireland; but instead of the bright, living green which consoles the eye in the absence of foliage in the "Emerald Isle," an arid brown, that tells of death and desolation, replaces the color and stir of the once luxuriant forests. In the ranges of wood near Chichester, Ulster County, a mountain fire was sweeping forward, on Sunday night, of fully three miles in length. It moved with awful rapidity, and the wild animals and birds were fleeing before it. During the day the volumes of smoke were so prodigious that the sun was entirely obscured, and it is said that, but for the determined efforts of 150 men, the village of Chichester itself would have been destroyed. Such was the intense heat of the air that these workers were forced, at times, to throw themselves on their faces to avoid suffocation. The cattle ran bellowing about mad with terror. Flakes of fire poured constantly from above, as if from a volcano in eruption. Long lines of fence disappeared almost in a flash, like the quick rush and flight of so many fiery serpents. The women in the houses packed up their treasures, and gathered together their little ones, prepared at any moment to flee for their lives.

If a rain-fall is still deferred, we shall probably soon hear of other conflagrations in all directions. Such was the experience of last year, and the conditions are now very much the same. The drought certainly has not been so protracted, but the heat of late has been most unseasonable, and complaints are universal of extreme dryness and the consequent threatened destruction of fruit crops. It becomes highly important for the people of the wooded districts to concert defense against the formidable evil that menaces them. Prevention is obviously better than cure. A forest fire three miles long may well be unmanageable, but if this could have been seen when confined to a small space, it might easily have been arrested. Prof. ESPY, indeed, or the gentleman in St. Louis who wants Government to aid him in experimenting to produce artificial rain, might control and beat down such a monstrous sea of flame; but it is certain that no ordinary appliances could do so. Hence, extreme vigilance during seasons of drought is the first thing to practice. A system of co-operation, so that the people of neighboring towns might turn out en masse to help each other in case of need, would be judicious. Those who have had experience know that in prairie fires the only really dependable plan of procedure is to get well to leeward, and either burn or cut down and remove the grass and stubble in the path of the coming flames. If the fire cannot leap the swathe or gap thus made, its race is run. It might be very difficult, or perhaps impossible, to do this in a burning wood, because of the size and weight of the trees. Perhaps, however, it might be done beforehand. The towns, that is to say, might provide for clearing spaces at assigned intervals in all forest lands, so that when fires did break out there would be some chance of keeping them within circumscribed limits. The subject is one worthy of grave attention, and now that these fresh conflagrations have come so swiftly on he heels of the destructive ones of last Fall, it is to be hoped that more active and effectual measures will be provided against similar disasters for the future than have yet been applied.

MINOR TOPICS.

Those persons who regret the grand old days when the slave aristocracy chewed tobacco and fought duels in Washington, will be somewhat revived on hearing of the fine old-fashioned "rencontre" which took place in that city between two fine old Southern gentlemen, a day or two since. "Gen." JONES, of Virginia, and "Col." SAYRE, of Alabama, were the heroes of the fight. The General was standing at the door of his hotel when he was attacked by the Colonel, armed with a heavy cane. The latter, by a well-aimed blow, broke the General's left wrist, when the General unexpectedly wrested away the cane and neatly pounded the gallant Colonel over the head. Some weak-minded and unchivalrous person separated them at this point; but no one else offering to aid the peacemaker, the high-toned military men drew knives and resumed the fight. They fell over one another for some time, and each stabbed his antagonist with great vigor until they became exhausted from want of blood. They were both handsomely cut to pieces, and the spectators felt that in spite of the inroad of the Northern scum, Washington was still true to its chivalrous traditions.

The most persistent and unpleasant bird that has yet been heard of—not excepting even the dissipated cocks that crow in the neighborhood of country boarding-houses at all hours of the night—has recently been misconducting himself near Copake, in this State. This reprehensible fowl was a bald eagle, who swooped upon a little girl playing in her door-yard, and prepared to carry her off. The mother of the child happening to notice the fiendish purpose of the eagle, snatched up her daughter and ran into the house, closely pursued by the wicked bird. Enraged at the loss of his intended supper, the eagle tried to force the door and to break in through the windows, proceeding in his burglarious undertaking with such vigor and intelligence that the alarmed mother locked her child in the cupboard. The eagle, not understanding the art of picking locks, thereupon flew away. The next morning he returned to the attack, but the astute mother had warned a neighbor of the bird's probable return, and that neighbor, provided with a gun, "laid for" that wicked bird—as the rural person words the story—and shot him dead. Thus ends the story of the burglarious eagle of Copake.

M. GAMBETTA has been making a speech to a deputation of Alsatians, in which he insisted that France should not speak of revenge, and that by patience and tenacity France would yet gain satisfaction without resorting to the sword. Which reads very nicely, and is no doubt pacific and moderate, but it is not very full of meaning. M. GAMBETTA plainly meant the Alsatians to believe that by patience and tenacity France could induce Germany to surrender Elsass. Now patience and tenacity are understood by the Germans at least as well as by the French. If France proposes to wait patiently until Germany is ready to ask her to resume the ownership of Elsass, she will certainly have a fine opportunity to practice the virtue of patience It is, of course, the only reasonable course for France to abandon the idle talk of revenge, and to accept the loss of her two provinces. It is foolish, however, for M. GAMBETTA to hold out expectations which will never be realized. Germany won Elsass by the sword, and will surrender it only when compelled to do so by superior force.

The Legislature has passed a bill authorizing the Police Commissioners to ascertain whether Street Contractor BROWN has violated his contract, to cancel the contract if it has been violated, and thereupon to clean the streets at once. This will probably delay the cleaning of the streets longer than it would have been delayed had the Legislature let the matter alone. The Police Commissioners will now hold meetings and discuss the subject, and do nothing for several weeks, in accordance with the usual custom of all Boards. Meanwhile the Street-cleaning Commission will have an excuse for letting the matter drop, and the Board of Health will be free from the nervous fear that public sentiment may compel it to do something useful. Now, it is a matter of little consequence who cleans the streets, provided they are cleaned. The Police Commissioners should order them to be cleaned immediately, and then discuss the question whether BROWN'S contract should be canceled afterward. Every day that the streets remain in their present condition increases the terrible danger of a deadly epidemic.

One of the most useful periodical publications now issued from the press is the Popular Science Monthly, of which the second number has just appeared. The publishers, Messrs. D. APPLETON & Co., have spared no pains or expense to render it a perfect storehouse of information on all subjects connected with the progress of science. That progress is so rapid that a special journal is needed to keep an adequate record of it. The means and enterprise of the Messrs. APPLETON afford a sufficient guarantee that the work will be well performed. Prof. E. L. YOUMANS is the editor, and in the second number he has an excellent article on the "Spots on the Sun." HERBERT SPENCER, Prof. TYNDALL, Prof. QUATREFARGES and many other well-known writers are among the contributors. A publication of this kind deserves more than a passing notice, and therefore we call attention to it in this column.

While in Europe the International Society is a dangerous organization, because it takes no share in the ordinary political questions of the day, and moves straight forward to the realization of its own mad political schemes, it is powerless in this country because, like all other organizations professing to advocate reforms, it falls into the hands of politicians. A new split has taken place in the society in this City—being the second or third split that has occurred within a year. It seems that Section 12, which consists of visionary radicals, who are not, and never have been, working men, has been endeavoring to convert the whole society into a political party, pledged to support a woman named WOODHULL, or BLOOD, for the Presidency. The Frenchmen belonging to the International decidedly object to this perversion of the original purpose of the Society, and have protested against the recognition of Section 12 by the Supreme Council. Like the Fenian Society, the International in America will always be the hunting-ground of politicians seeking for votes, and will hence always be engaged in internal squabbles, which will prevent it from exercising any influence of moment.

Last Sunday the Mercantile Library reading-room was opened to subscribers. This is the first time that it has been opened on Sunday, and the proposal to open it on that day was defeated only a year ago. It is strange with what suddenness the advocates of opening the public libraries on Sunday have achieved their victory. For years a small party has advocated this measure, but the general sentiment of the religious community was decidedly opposed to it. A month or so ago they called a public meeting, and engaged Mr. BEECHER to make a speech. Immediately the thing was accomplished. The Cooper Union reading-room, and the Mercantile Library were at once thrown open on Sunday, and it is understood that the other libraries will soon follow their example. This sudden change of opinion is not easy to understand. Surely Mr. BEECHER alone did not, by a single speech, brush away the life-long prejudices of a whole community.

Some time since we called attention to the singular lack of felicity in calling a base-ball club, or a target-company, the "Mutual Club" or the "Mutual Rifle Guard;" and now come the "Amalgamated Carpenters," and apprise us of their corporate existence by engaging in a strike. How a man can be a mutual ball player, or a mutual marksman, is not very clear, but even imagination fails to conceive of an amalgamated carpenter. We all know that an amalgam is a union of some metallic substance with mercury. Now, the carpenter is not generally supposed to be a metallic person—though a striking carpenter may figuratively be called a man of mettle. Neither is he usually a mercurial person. But granting that he is metallic, in what way does he unite himself with mercury; or being mercurial, to what metallic substances does he join himself? And if he does neither of these things, how can he be called an amalgamated carpenter? This is evidently one of those things "that no fellow can find out."

Yale Divinity School.

The completion of fifty years since the foundation of the Theological School of Yale College is to be commemorated this week at New-Haven. The usual speaking by the graduating class will take place on Wednesday afternoon. A historical discourse will be given on Wednesday evening by Prof. FISHER, and meetings of the Alumni will be held on the forenoon and afternoon of Thursday, to be followed by a social entertainment.

TWO MURDERS.

A Policeman and a Master Carpenter the Victims.

The Officer's Head Split Open while Preventing a Murder—A Carpenter Assaults his Employer with a Knife.

Yesterday afternoon, Officer JOHN LESLIE, of the Eleventh Precinct, was dangerously, if not fatally, wounded, while discharging his duty, in attempting to arrest a man who was threatening to kill his children.

The story of the tragedy is as follows: About 5 o'clock, a woman, named JULIA LIVELY, entered the Police Station house, over Union Market, and requested that an officer be sent to her residence, No. 119½ Willett-street, rear, to arrest her husband, who had beaten her, and would probably murder some of their children. The woman was crying bitterly and seemed to be in great distress of mind and body, so Sergeant WOODWARD, who was in command at the desk, ordered Officers LESLIE and FLANNIGAN to accompany her home and arrest the husband.

When the policemen arrived on the scene they found that LIVELY had locked the door of the room occupied by his family, and as they heard the children screaming inside both of the officers believed that some terrible crime was being committed. They determined to effect a forcible entrance to the room, but the door fastenings resisted all their efforts, so Officer LESLIE stepped out on to the fire escape, and so reached the room windows, one of which was open. The other officer remained in the hallway to intercept the husband of Mrs. LIVELY should he attempt to escape from LESLIE. Scarcely had the officer stepped through the window when LIVELY, who was intoxicated, and positively furious in his rage, seized a common meat-cleaver and dealt Officer LESLIE a terrific blow on the top of the head, immediately over the left temple. The blade penetrated the skull of the officer, and rendered him almost unable to cope with his assailant. He, however, was nerved to desperation at seeing the German aiming another blow with his formidable weapon, and struck him on the head with his club, which split in the act.

This closed the battle, for Officer FLANNIGAN soon followed the footsteps of his brother officer, and prevented the infuriated German from doing him any more mischief. Finding that Officer LESLIE was very faint and feeble from loss of blood, Officer FLANNIGAN sent a citizen to the Station-house for assistance, remaining in the room meanwhile to keep his prisoner, and look after LESLIE, who lay moaning on the floor, which was covered with his blood. As soon as Capt. MURPHY ascertained the scope of the tragedy, he ordered out several of the reserve platoon, who ran hastily to the scene with a stretcher.

Officer LESLIE was then removed to the Station-house and carried into the Captain's room, when he requested that Father MEISTER, of St. Bridget's Church, be called, for he feared that he would soon die. The priest promptly attended upon the wounded officer, and afforded him the consolations of the Church. Meanwhile Police Surgeon WATERMAN was summoned, and he was soon joined by Dr. GREENOUGH, of the Ambulance Service. These physicians examined Officer LESLIE'S wound, and found it to be nearly two inches in length, and that the weapon had evidently penetrated to the inner skull, if it had not severed that also. Under these circumstances it was decided to do no more than staunch the flow of blood, and remove the hair near the lips of the wound. After which the officer was tenderly carried down stairs by several of his comrade and placed in the ambulance, in which he was carried to Bellevue Hospital. Though the surgeons endeavored to cheer the spirits of Officer LESLIE by giving him hope, they privately expressed the opinion that his wound would prove a fatal one.

The prisoner, ADOLPH LIVELY, also had his head dressed, the skull being slightly fractured by the blow from LESLIE'S club. He seemed to be quite stupid from the effects of liquor, and was at times violent in his conduct while under the hands of the surgeons. LIVELY is about forty years of age, and there are six children in the family. ADOLPH is a rag-picker by occupation, and appears to have been a violent man toward his wife and children whenever intoxicated.

Officer LESLIE has been on the force over five years, and is represented by his superiors as one of the best officers in that Precinct. Always reliable and prompt in the discharge of his duty, and eager in his endeavors to check street ruffianism, he was highly valued. LESLIE is unmarried, a native of New-York, and twenty-eight years of age. He resides at No. 524 East Thirteenth-street, with his mother, whose sole support he was. Mrs. LESLIE is now very ill, and is not expected to recover.

The occurrence of the tragedy created intense excitement in that crowded neighborhood, and a large number of people gathered near the market, hoping to hear the details of the affair.

DESPERATE STABBING AFFRAY.

An affray occurred in the liquor-saloon No. 439 East Twenty-third-street, yesterday evening, which will probably result in the death of HENRY ULHOFF, a master carpenter residing at No. 133 Stanton-street. For several weeks past ULHOFF has been engaged in the construction of a silk factory at the foot of East Twenty-third-street. Among the workmen employed by him was BERNARD CONROY, a young Irish artisan residing at No. 333 East Twenty-second-street. CONROY worked under ULHOFF during the first half of last week, and on receiving his pay for that period suddenly quit work, and went to saw in a stone-yard near by. This sudden and unexpected defection of CONROY greatly angered ULHOFF, and, dropping into the saloon where CONROY was yesterday evening, he reproached him in harsh terms. CONROY was not a whit less indpendent, and replied that he had a perfect right to work for whoever he pleased. ULHOFF, at this, caught hold of CONROY by the lappels of the coat and shook him roughly. CONROY at the time was sharpening a small pocket-knife on the sole of his boot, and before any men in the saloon could stay his hand, stabbed ULHOFF in the groin and abdomen. The wounded man was removed to the Eighteenth Precinct Station-house, where CONROY, having been promptly arrested, was locked up. ULHOFF'S wounds were examined by the Police Surgeon in attendance and pronounced fatal. At his own request, instead of being taken to Bellevue Hospital, he was removed to his residence in an ambulance.

The Jersey City Malfeasance Cases.

In the Hudson County Court, yesterday, decisions were rendered in some of the malfeasance cases. They were rendered on motions previously made to quash the indictments. The Court granted the motion in the case of County Physician PRENDERGAST, charged with defrauding DEMOTT & WHITE, druggists, on the ground that the firm could not have been under any obligation to enter into the arrangement made, and it was not charged that the county had lost any money. In the case of Police Justice SEYMOUR the indictment was quashed because of the indefiniteness of the charges.

The indictment against Chief MCWILLIAMS and Ex-Capt. MAHON for complicity in the Noyes bond robbery was allowed to stand.

In the case of the members of the Board of Public Works, charged with awarding contracts to others than the lowest bidders, the Court said that the section of the charter would not be understood to forbid the exercise of judgment, and the members could not be indicted for error of judgment, and as no complicity or criminal intent was alleged, the indictments were quashed. In the case of the indictments for failure to advertise for bids, the bills were allowed to stand.

The last motion heard was on the indictment against Police Commissioner GOETZ, charged with taking commission on lands sold to the Board of Works. The Court said it could not decide whether the charter intended to forbid business relations between members of one Board and any other department of the City Government, and the case was sent to the Supreme Court for decision.

The Van Saun Forgery Case—The Prisoner to be Bailed.

The examination of ALBERT VAN SAUN, charged with forgery, was resumed yesterday, at the Tombs Police Court, before Judge DOWLING. District-Attorney SULLIVAN appeared for the prosecution, and H. L. CLINTON and A. W. TENNEY for the defense.

Mrs. LIVINIA POST, an aunt of the accused, testified, that in October and November last, she believed the accused to have been in the brokerage business; she knew Mr. JOHN E. PARSONS, and had engaged him about the 1st of November last in this case; the business related to a check for $56.375, and which, it is alleged, ALBERT VAN SAUN had forged; she engaged Mr. PARSONS, without any intention of violating the law; she had received a check from Mr. PARSONS, but gave it to her sister, Mrs. VAN SAUN, and had never received it back; she did not know where it was at the present time; she gave it to her sister a long time before the defendant surrendered himself; she recognized the paper handed to her, signed by F. H. SMITH, being the assignment of a certain check to her; she had promised to return the check to Mr. PARSONS if he required it; Mr. PARSONS had asked her for it, and she had requested it from her sister, but had not obtained it.

Mr. CLINTON subjected the witness to a very close cross-examination, but failed to elicit anything new. This concluded the case for the prosecution. Mrs. POST was much agitated while giving her testimony, and fainted at the close of the cross-examination.

The accused was then formally examined. He said his age was twenty-eight, that he was born in New-York, was by business a broker, and in relation to the charge, "not guilty." The case was then adjourned till Saturday morning at 10 o'clock, when witnesses for the defense will be produced. Judge DOWLING fixed the bail for the prisoner at $20,000, but it was not furnished yesterday.

AMUSEMENTS.

Musical.

CENTRAL PARK GARDEN CONCERTS.

The series of Summernight concerts at the Central Park Garden was commenced last evening, under most auspicious circumstances. Pleasant weather, an exceedingly large audience, and a capital recital of a varied programme, left nothing to be desired. No theme could be more agreeable to dwell upon than Mr. THOMAS' performances, but it must be said that, at the present writing, none could suggest remarks more worn by repetition. In numbers, the gentleman's orchestra is surpassed abroad by many bands of wider reputation; but in no part of Europe could the rehearsal of a vast repertory in which music of all kinds is represented result in showing a more scholarly appreciation of composers' intentions, greater individual proficiency in expressing them, or a more thorough unity of taste and action. Mr. THOMAS' men are equal to any task assigned them. The tunefulness of MOZART, the elaborateness of WAGNER, the sensuous swing of the waltz-movements of STRAUSS enjoy an exposition alike truthful and effective. Last night's bill included, besides writings by these masters, selections from WEBER'S delicious "Preciosa," the ever-fresh overture to "William Tell," an andante cantabile (op. 97) by BEETHOVEN, and WALLACE'S overture to "The Desert Flower." The programme, it will be admitted, was certainly a Catholic one. It only remains to add that its interpretation was heartily applauded, Mr. THOMAS' appearance, and his resumption of the familiar duties of conductor, being marked by a demonstration of delight leaving no one in doubt as to the liberal measure of recognition his talent and industry enjoy.

THE CONCERT SEASON.

Señor PABLO SARASATE, the young violinist whose admirable work has so frequently during the past year commanded our most liberal encomiums, gave at Steinway Hall, last evening, a farewell concert. The gentleman's faultless execution, his exquisite beauty of tone and his unswerving taste as a musician were as conspicuous as usual in his selections for the entertainment, most notable among which were a duet on themes from "Don Giovanni," recited with the aid of Miss KREBS, and a solo on motives from "Der Freyschuetz," by the artist himself. Miss KREBS' numbers were one of CHOPIN'S polonaises and LISZT'S exacting arrangement of the waltz in GOUNOD'S "Faust." The vocalists of the occasion were Mlle. CORRADI, whose merit as an executant was admitted after her performances at a not distant Philharmonic concert, and Miss GOMIEN, a contralto. Mr. DACHAUER conducted....Miss PAULINE NININGER, who is about to depart for Europe, will give a concert at Steinway Hall this evening. The co-operation of Mme. GAZZANIGA, of Miss AGNES PALMER, of Miss MARIE MANZOCCHI and of other artists is assured....A soirée musicale will be given by Miss TOEDT, at Chickering Hall, this night....To-morrow afternoon an "organ matinée," participated in exclusively by pupils of the New-York Conservatory of Music, will occur at Association Hall. A very interesting programme has been arranged. Its interpretation will be commenced at 2 o'clock....On Thursday afternoon Mr. BONAWITZ will give a piano-forte recital at Steinway Hall. Prominent among the compositions chosen for interpretation is BEETHOVEN'S greatest sonata, Op. 106, which, we believe, has never until now been rendered in public in this country.

Dramatic.

WOOD'S MUSEUM.

Miss MARIETTA RAVEL appeared at this establishment last evening in "Jartine," a four-act drama, written expressly for interpretation by her. Mlle. RAVEL'S first character is that of a vivandière, and subsequently she comes forth as a recruit, a soldier, a Mexican boy and a dancing girl. Abundant opportunity is thus given her for displaying, among other accomplishments, her skill as a fencer and her grace and vivacity as a dancer. Last evening she was supported by Mr. T. W. KEENE and by the whole strength of the company. She received the most flattering applause. Her engagement at Wood's ends with this week. At the matinées "Eily O'Conner" and "The Pretty Horsebreaker" are given, and in these plays Miss PAULINE MARKHAM, Miss ALICE ATHERTON and other favorites take part.

Richmond County Republican Convention—President Grant Indorsed—Assemblyman Judd Complimented.

The Union Republican County Convention of Richmond County was held at 2 o'clock P. M. yesterday. Hon. G. W. CURTIS was chosen chairman, and JOHN MEDE and G. H. MCCREADY, Secretaries.

One hundred and forty delegates were present, and the feeling was harmonious and enthusiastic. The following resolutions were, on motion of Mr. CURTIS, unanimously adopted.

Resolved, That the happy condition of the country, the activity of its various industries, its constantly increasing prosperity, the universal feeling of stability which encourages enterprises of all kinds, the rapid extension of every right to every citizen, and the visible dissolution of the Democratic Party, so long hostile to justice and equal rights, are the satisfactory proofs of national confidence in a Republican administration of the Government.

Resolved, That, in our judgment, Gen. GRANT has been as faithful and patriotic in the Cabinet as he was in the field; and that, relying upon his honest heart and his pure purpose, his renomination to the Presidency is earnestly desired by the great mass of the Republican Party.

Resolved, That the delegates from this county to the State Republican Convention are requested to support in every honorable way the selection of delegates to the National Convention at Philadelphia those friendly to the renomination of Gen. GRANT.

Messrs. J. W. SIMONTON, C. C. NORVELL, J. C. THOMPSON and G. W. CURTIS, addressed the Convention. Hon. D. W. JUDD and Capt. D. H. CORTELYOU, were elected Delegates to the State Convention, and Capt. O. D. JEWETT and CYRUS WHITE, alternates. The following resolution was adopted:

Resolved, That the thanks of this Convention be and hereby are tendered to Hon. E. W. JUDD, for the honest, efficient and faithful manner he has fulfilled his duties as Assemblyman of this county.

The Convention adjourned with hearty and enthusiastic cheers for Gen. GRANT.

Highway Robbery in Twenty-Sixth-Street.

Early yesterday morning, Mr. EDWARD VANOPPENS, of No. 358 West Twenty-sixth-street, was walking through Twenty-sixth-street, when he was knocked down by ROBERT HERON and JAS. HALLORAN, two noted thieves. While Mr. VANOPPENS lay half conscious on the sidewalk, HERON proceeded to search his pockets. Just as his hand was in Mr. VANOPPENS' vest-pocket, and he was removing his watch and chain, value $50, Officer BYRNES, of the Sixteenth Precinct, came up, and the thieves fled. The officer gave chase and arrested them. They were fully identified by Mr. VANOPPENS. On being arraigned at Jefferson Market yesterday, before Justice LEDWITH, HALLORAN, who is nineteen years of age, said he was a plasterer, residing at No. 304 Tenth-avenue. HERON said he was a blacksmith, twenty-one years old, living in West Twenty-sixth-street. The prisoners were committed for trial without bail.

Mysterious Disappearance of a Bridegroom.

On the 14th of April last, JULIUS VOGT, aged twenty-three, left Providence, R. I., on the express train for this City, where he was to have been married to a young lady to whom he appeared to be devotedly attached. He had in his possession $250 and a gold watch, and it was his intention to settle in this City after his marriage and follow his occupation as wood-carver. His friends in Providence not having heard from him since he left his home made inquiries and found that he failed to keep his appointment for the wedding, and had not been seen by any of his acquaintances since he left Providence. Inspector DILKS has been notified, and is making search for the missing man.

GREAT FIRES.

Destructive Conflagrations in this City and Elsewhere.

A Warehouse Gutted and an Entire Block of Buildings Burned—A Pennsylvania Town Surrounded by Burning Woods.

A Rag Warehouse in Warren-street Burned—Loss $40,000.

Flames were discovered issuing from the windows of the first floor of the five-story brick building, No. 91 Warren-street, at 6¾ o'clock yesterday evening, by Officer THORNTON, of the Third Precinct. Before he had fairly sent out the alarm, the entire building was on fire. It was occupied by RAWITSER BROTHERS, dealers in woolen rags and shoddy, and the hatchways having by some unfortunate mishap been left open, the flames rapidly communicated with the inflammable goods stored on every floor and speedily gained the mastery. A second alarm, sent out by Chief-Engineer PERLEY, brought additional firemen to the scene, who labored until at length the flames, which at one period of the fire had risen to a great altitude and illuminated the streets for blocks around, were wholly subdued. The burning building was situated directly in the rear of the Third Precinct Station-house, and so apprehensive were the Police of the conflagration spreading, that a prisoner confined in the cells was taken out and removed to the Leonard-street Station-house for safe keeping. The damage done RAWITSER BROS.' stock is estimated at $30,000. The building, owned by HARVEY REED, was damaged $10,000. The insurance and cause of fire are alike unknown.

A Whole Block of Buildings Burned in Williamsburg—Loss $64,000.

A disastrous fire occurred last evening about 6 o'clock in Brooklyn, E. D., in which an entire block, comprising nearly twenty houses, were destroyed, and a large number of poor families totally deprived of shelter. The fire was first discovered in a smoke-house at No. 93 Throop-avenue, near the corner of Bartlett-street. Before the Fire Department could reach the spot the flames had communicated to the adjoining buildings, and for upward of two hours they continued to defy all efforts to subdue them. The buildings were mostly three-story frame edifices, the lower floors of which were occupied as stores, and the upper stories as tenements. Nearly all the houses on the block on Throop-avenue and on Bartlett-street were completely gutted, and several buildings on the rear lots were totally consumed. The loss in the aggregate will amount to about $60,000, that on the buildings being about $40,000, on the stock $10,000, and on the furniture of the tenants, $14,000. The following is a list of the buildings burned, as nearly as could be ascertained: Nos. 87 and 89 Throop-avenue and 74 Bartlett-street, owned by HENRY STELLER; insured for $6,000 in the Kings County Insurance Company, $2,000 in the Williamsburg Company, and $1,500 in the Phenix. No. 91 Throop-avenue, owned by CHAS. HOLBY, of New-York, occupied by ALBERT MARSEL as a lager-beer saloon; insured $500. No. 93 Throop-avenue, JACOB HENKEL; insured in Kings County Company, $4,000. No. 105 Throop-avenue, owned and occupied by JOSEPH SPAGEL; insured $3,000. No. 95 Throop-avenue, owned by Mr. PFIFER; No. 97 Throop-avenue, Mr. KREUS; Nos. 99, 101 and 103 Throop-avenue, Mr. PFISTER; No. 78 Bartlett-street, Mr. COOPER; No. 80 Bartlett-street, Mr. GOSS. The portion of the city in which the fire took place is inhabited almost exclusively by Germans. The families who were thus suddenly deprived of their homes were afforded shelter by their more fortunate neighbors. There were probably 100 families thus accommodated. Fortunately no casualties to life or limb occurred.

A Pickle Manufactory Burned—Two Buildings and Three Horses Destroyed.

SMITH, in the rear. The stores were occupied by FISHER & Co., wholesale dry-goods dealers, and STAUNTON, wholesale dealer and manufacturer of paper-hangings. A great deal of valuable machinery was destroyed in STAUNTON and SMITH'S establishments. The total loss is about $150,000. Woods of the Shawangunk Mountains in Flames.

KINGSTON, N. Y., May 13.—A fire in the Shawangunk Mountains at Port Ben burned over a space two miles in width, destroying three hundred cords of wood and an immense quantity of timber. The fire originated in burning over a fallow, and ran from the base to the top of the mountain. It is now burning toward Long Pond, where it is hoped it may be checked. The whole country is as dry as tinder, and the ground is so parched that if rain is delayed much longer the consequences to fruit, grain and health will be serious.

POWDER-MILL BLOWN UP.

Narrow Escape of the Employes of the Moosic Powder-Mill, near Scranton, Penn.—Three Buildings Blown to Shreds.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

SCRANTON, Penn., May 13.—At 11:40 A. M. today many of the citizens of this city saw a huge cloud of smoke ascending rapidly, followed immediately by two other clouds, and within thirty minutes it was known here that the Moosic Powder-mill had blown up. It consisted of three buildings, and they exploded one after the other. No one knows what caused the explosion, as everybody employed in the mills had left the premises for dinner. It is singular to relate not a man or boy was injured. The force of the explosion was so great that timber, slabs and brick were thrown across the river on the track of the Delaware and Hudson Railroad. Conductor DALY and his men worked heroically to save his passenger-train, which chanced to pass at the time, from destruction by fire.

The Union Home and School for Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans.

The German Veteran Singing Society, in conjunction with Post Koltes, No. 32, Grand Army of the Republic, recently gave a theatrical entertainment and ball, the proceeds of which were to be given to the Union Home and School for the Orphans of Soldiers and Sailors who fell in the late war.

Last Sunday the Committee from both of these organizations, consisting of about thirty members, proceeded in a body to the school, in One Hundred and Fifty-first-street, near the Boulevard, and presented the money, $314, to Mrs. HOYT, the Secretray. The children, numbering about 200, were collected together in the Sunday-school room, where the Superintendent, Rev. Dr. FULLER, conducted the exercises, consisting of singing by the children, and repeating from memory a chapter from the Bible. The German Veteran Singing Society sang several songs for the children, after which they were addressed by Capt. J. C. JULIUS LANGBEIN, Ex-Capt. HART, an old Police Captain and a life-long friend of children, and by Comrade NITZCHE, of Post No. 32.

The visitors were then treated to an excellent dinner, which had been prepared for them through the kindness of the lady managers, after which they were kindly shown through the building, which is in an excellent condition. If some of our citizens would only make a visit with their wives to this nobly consecrated institution, and witness the promptness and aptitude which the children display in their various studies, and look upon their bright and happy, yet mournful faces, they would be well repaid by the visit, and at least contribute something to help carry on the good work.

The Memorial Committee of the Grand Army of the Republic have resolved (as heretofore) to appropriate the proceeds of Decoration Day to the Union Home and School. A work-shop, in which the children will have an opportunity to learn various trades, is in contemplation, and this fund will be the foundation for its erection.

Gas and Bridge Complications at Bushwick.

A difficulty occurred yesterday morning at the new bridge across Bushwick Creek, Brooklyn, E. D., between the Gas Company and the bridge men. For some nights past the gas in Greenpoint has refused to burn, and the difficulty was supposed to lie in the gas main that crosses the creek at the bridge and supplies Greenpoint. A strong smell of gas in the air made this apparent. Yesterday morning the Gas Company sent a force of men to excavate and repair the pipe. They commenced digging a trench in the bridge embankment, but were resisted by Mr. FRANK SWIFT, the bridge contractor, who ordered his men to fill up the trench. They went to work and filled up about as fast as the gas men dug out. The bridge men also ran a row of carts into the half dug trench and stretched a log-chain across the bridge to prevent the gas company's tool-wagon from crossing. The war of shovels continued for about an hour, when an armistice was declared, and Mr. SWIFT met the Gas Company's representative to decide on a way of getting at the pipe without doing so much injury to the new embankment.

The Shooting of Mr. Phelps—Arrest and Discharge of Suspicious Persons—Condition of the Wounded Man.

Last night the physicians in attendance on Mr. PHELPS, the jeweler who was shot in his residence, corner of Sixth-avenue and Thirty-ninth-street, on last Friday night, by one or two sneak-thieves who had entered his house, declared that the condition of the wounded man was considerably improved, and cheerfully evinced hopes of his ultimate recovery. The scoundrels who perpetrated the daring crime are still at large. The Police in the various precincts are, however, extremely vigilant, and yesterday arrested John McCullam, Thomas McGowan, William A. Stevenson, John O'Brien, William Higgins, Charles Schroeder and William Schroeder. These men, suspicious characters, were brought before Superintendent KELSO and discharged, as Mr. PALMER, the young man who grappled the taller of the thieves, failed to identify any one of them as the would-be murderer of Mr. PHELPS.

Installation of the Tammany Society Officers.

The Tammany Society held its regular annual celebration and installation of officers last evening at Tammany Hall. There was a large attendance of both the old and new members of the recently reformed association. The present Grand Sachem, AUGUSTUS SCHELL, was in the chair, and Sachem WILSON SMALL filled the post of Secretary. The following six Sachems, recently elected, were installed with the ceremonies customary, no one but members of the Society being admitted to the room during the evening: August Belmont, Miles B. Andrus, John Fox, John Kelly, John W. Chanler, Wm. C. Connet were installed, as were also: Treasurer, Arthur Leary; Sagamore, Wilson Small; Secretary, Joel O. Stevens; and Wiskinskie, John D. Newman.

Grand Sachem SCHELL delivered an address, and each one of the initiates made a short speech. No business of public interest was transacted, and the ceremonies were over by 9½ o'clock.

Rev. Dr. Burchard's Silver Wedding.

The twenty-fifth anniversary of the marriage of Rev. Dr. S. D. BURCHARD, pastor of Thirteenth-street Presbyterian Church for the past Thirty-three years, was celebrated last evening at his residence, No. 51 Seventh-avenue. The presents were both numerous and costly. To enumerate all would be impossible in a short space. There were a full table-set of solid silver, encased in walnut, valued at $1,100, the present of the congregation; a pair of silver cups and saucers, presented by Mr. and Mrs. FRANCIS A. PALMER; a case of dessert spoons, by WM. B. STEWART, No. 781 Fifth-avenue; a table set of castors of chaste design, the present of the reverend gentleman's children; a coffee urn, presented by the Alumni of Ingham University to their retiring Chancellor and wife, Dr. and Mrs BURCHARD; three soupladles, (silver handles and gold bowls,) from the Burchard Literary Association, and a basket of flowers, on which were worked, on a ground of pinks, surrounded by tube roses, the memorable figures, 1847-1872.

Appropriate speeches were made by Rev. Dr. CROSBY, Fourth-avenue Presbyterian Church, Messrs. PRINCE, FIELD and Hon. E. A. LAMBERT, Ex-Mayor of Brooklyn, &c.

LABOR MOVEMENTS.

Efforts to Enforce the Eight-Hour Law.

Strike of the Carpenters in this City—Lock-out in Hamilton, Ont.—Eight Hours in Government Armories.

THE CARPENTERS' STRIKE.

They Demand the Eight-Hour System—Meeting at Masonic Hall Last Night.

The Winter was prolonged in so unusual a way that the advent of fine weather was hailed with joy by builders all over the City, and edifices began to go up or to be pulled down in every direction. Carpenters and joiners had their hands full, and it would have been hard last Saturday morning to have found a single one who was out of work. Under these circumstances the carpenters and joiners, who were earning $3 50 per day, thought fit to make a strike for the enforcement of the Eight-hour law, which has been almost a dead letter ever since its passage. Yesterday morning nearly a thousand of them assembled at Masonic Hall, on Thirteenth-street, between Third and Fourth avenues, and organized a strike. They literally hung out their banner on the outer wall, appointed Mr. MICHAEL PURDY chairman, and four other workmen secretaries. Then the chair appointed committees to visit the different places where other carpenters were at work, and persuaded them, morally, to give up working unless the bosses gave in to the eight-hour system. From 8 o'clock in the morning until sunset these committees went the rounds in bands of from ten to one hundred men, the smaller number calling upon the bosses to try and persuade them, the larger number going to the places where men were working. By a diligent exercise of these tactics throughout the day no less than 400 non-society men joined the protective union, and up to 12 P. M. last night 140 bosses had signified their intention of coming to terms. A great many bosses called personally at the head-quarters, and, after giving in their adhesion to the requirements of the men, requested to be furnished with so many hands, and marched off with them.

In the evening the Masonic Hall presented a stirring spectacle. The sidewalk in front of the building was lined with workmen discussing the strike, and all enthusiastic over its success. The steps were a perfect jam of men ascending and descending, but the hall, though absolutely filled, was kept in excellent order, and there was neither pushing nor jostling. The Chairman had a hard time of it, for upon him devolved the onerous duty of appointing the numerous committees, and the men were all too busy in talking to listen. A workman brought in a terrible story that at a shop in Greenwich-street, near Houston-street, there were sixty workmen who were so terribly behind the times that they were working for $3 25 per diem of ten hours. [Groans.] The Chairman immediately appointed a committee of ten to wait upon the boss and expostulate with him, and another committee of 100 to wait upon the workmen and explain to them the enormity of the imposition that had been practiced upon them. At intervals workmen got up and addressed the meeting, but they only spoke for a few minutes, and none displayed any special turn for oratory. The assembly would therefore have been extremely wearisome had it not been for the enthusiasm of the men who have thrown all their energies into the movement, and who are enthusiastically certain of success. It must be admitted that all present indications seem to favor their complete success. The bosses, however, have refused to decide as a body until to-morrow, when they will hold a general meeting at the Mechanics' and Traders' Exchange, in Park-place. They are willing to be bound by the eight-hour law, but they only want to pay for eight hours, $2 80 in lieu of $3 50. They held an informal meeting at the above-mentioned place yesterday afternoon, but it was secret, and nothing transpired save that Mr. BLACKSTONE, the President of the Master Carpenters, was requested to call a general meeting for to-morrow.

Nine-Hour Movement in Canada—A Lock-Out in Hamilton.

HAMILTON, Ontario, May 13.—Several large manufacturing establishments here have locked out their employes rather than yield to the nine-hour movement. There are about 1,000 hands locked out.

EIGHT-HOUR LAW.

How the System Has Worked in the Government Armories—It Has not Accomplished all its Advocates Claimed.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—The Secretary of War has sent to the Senate reports from the Commandants of the Springfield Armory and the Rock Island Arsenal, giving a comparative statement showing the operations of the Eight-hour law. With regard to the Rock Island Arsenal, the Commandant says he believed it was expected that under the law the employes would work more willingly, more intelligently, and with more strength and despatch than under the ten-hour system, and that, therefore, more work would be done per hour to compensate, or partially compensate, the Government for the loss of two hours' work. This expectation has not been realized at that arsenal, and in this respect the above statement respecting the compensative amount of work performed under the two systems is entirely true. It has been claimed that if the men worked only eight hours per day that the additional leisure time allowed them would generally be devoted to reading and study, and otherwise to the benefit of their social, moral and mental conditions, thereby making them better and more valuable workmen and citizens. This expectation has been partially realized in the case of carpenters and mechanics, but has not been realized to any considerable extent in the case of masons and stone-cutters. The leisure time has been generally an injury rather than a benefit in the case of laborers. Those in the latter class have generally no houses of their own, and, their leisure time in most cases is more productive of bad habits than of good.

The Commandant of the Springfield Armory says a careful calculation shows that an average saving of about $500 per year for gas for lighting purposes is effected by reducing the number of hours from ten to eight, which saving is principally in the short days of the Winter months. The total saving in coal and gas is $2,900 per year of 300 working days in favor of the eight-hour system, about equal to the wages of three workmen for the same time. On account of the variable nature, and the amount of work done before and after the introduction of the eight-hour system, some sixteen different models of guns having been worked on since the close of the war, it is found impossible to give any accurate and reliable data regarding the cost of work by day workmen under the two systems, except, perhaps, that it is believed that the rates of foreman, assistant foreman, inspectors, helpers, policemen, &c., to the piece workmen were not materially affected by the reduction in the length of the working day.

A Model Policeman—He Sells Drink and Arrests Drunkards.

Forty-two policemen were arraigned before Commissioner MANIERRE yesterday morning, at the Central Police Office, for trial on various charges preferred against them. Patrolman PATRICK REDDY, of the Thirtieth Precinct, was charged with being the proprietor of a low liquor-store at No. 431 East Eighteenth-street. It appears that an anonymous communication was received by Superintendent KELSO, charging REDDY with keeping a liquor-store at the above number, and Capt. CAMERON, of the Eighteenth Precinct, was directed to investigate the matter. Accompanied by Detective LA RUE, of his command, he visited the place and found REDDY behind the bar waiting upon customers. LA RUE purchased two cigars from him. REDDY was in his shirt sleeves but had his uniform pantaloons on. When arraigned before the Commissioner REDDY denied that he was the owner of the establishment, and claimed that it belonged to his cousin, who bore the same name as himself. He, however, admitted that his family occupied apartments in the rear of the liquor-store. It is more than probable that there will be a vacancy for a patrolman in the Thirtieth Precinct within the next twenty-four hours.

The calendar did not contain any other cases of importance.

Visits of Midnight Marauders to Private Houses.

At an early hour yesterday morning, Officer BRADY, of the Fifteenth Precinct, observed that a second story window of HECKER'S piano-forte ware-rooms, No. 33 Union-place, was open and that there were burglars in the building. He entered, and found that they had made their escape. He also found that the burglars had attempted to force open two safes in the office. Lying near the safes were a monkey wrench, several chisels, wedges, &c., which they had used in their operations. Mr. HECKER, who lives in the upper part of the building, was aroused by the Police, and secured his establishment.

Early yesterday morning burglars forced an entrance into the dwelling of Mrs. BURTON, No. 105 East One Hundred and Nineteenth-street, by breaking open the basement door. The thieves ransacked the lower portion of the house, and succeeded in carrying off a gold watch and chain, and wearing apparel, valued at $350, with which they escaped unmolested.

The New Charter and Governor Hoffman.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

Many of the newspaper writers within the last week have industriously circulated a report that Gov. HOFFMAN was likely to veto the new charter, because there is in it a clause prohibiting the appropriation of public money to private and sectarian schools not under the management or control of the Board of Education, and not subject to the laws of the State relating to public schools. In justice to Gov. HOFFMAN it must be said there is no foundation in fact, up to the present time, for such a charge against him. He has always, when speaking or writing of the public schools, expressed himself as strong and as true a friend of our excellent system of free public schools as any reformer in the State. He has repeatedly expressed himself in conversation as opposed to appropriating the public money to private or sectarian schools. His own Democratic Secretary of the State Board of Public Charities has, in very clear and strong terms, condemned the giving of public money to these rabble of our public schools and spoken in one of his annual reports of the injury already wrought to our public schools by this illegitimate use of our public money. In the Governor's veto of the Charter of the Committee of Seventy, while expressing himself very strongly and at length in favor of the giving of public money to private or sectarian hospitals, and while objecting to that part of the Charter of the Committee of Seventy on Education that seemed to turn the teachers of the public schools out of office, yet he studiously avoided saying one word in objection to that section of the Committee of Seventy's Charter that forbade the appropriation of money to private or sectarian schools. Now if he considered that prohibition as to the schools objectionable, it is fair to presume he would have said so; but as he made no allusion whatever in his veto message to the prohibition of paying public money to private or sectarian schools, the fair inference is, that he favors such a prohibition as a reasonable protective measure to save our public-school system from ultimate destruction. He knows perfectly well that at least three-quarters of the voters of this State are determined, at all costs, to protect our public-school system from destruction, and that, if the question of voting public money to the private or sectarian schools was submitted to the people of the State at large, that probably not one-tenth part of the citizens would vote in favor of it. There is but a single sect in the State that favors such appropriations, and a large and very highly respectable section of this sect, both laymen and clergymen, are in favor of the public schools. The Governor may veto the charter, because it turns Mayor HALL and many other of his intimate political friends out of office; but his decision as to whether he will or will not veto the charter, will not be influenced by the anti-sectarian clause, unless he goes back upon his whole previous record in relation to public education.

REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS.

The attendance at the Exchange yesterday (Monday, May 13,) was slim, and the only auction attempted was that previously announced, in charge of JERE. JOHNSON, Jr., who offered for sale some 200 lots, located at Richmond Hill, Long Island, being the balance of the Curtiss estate, the larger portion of which was sold at auction on the grounds on Monday of last week. The result of yesterday's transaction was a failure, however, only twenty-one lots and gores being disposed of at very low figures, as will be seen by the report appended. Seventeen of the lots were bought by B. A. SANDFORD, of this City, and four by A. DE GRAW, of Jamaica, Long Island. The balance of the property was withdrawn, and for the present will be held at private sale. In regard to the auction held at Elizabeth, N. J., yesterday, by A. D. MELLICK, JR., & BRO., a detailed report will appear to-morrow. The day was pleasant, the attendance large, some 1,500 persons going out from this City alone to be present at the sale, and as the lots offered were in every respect first-class the results achieved should have been a success. To-day, at the Exchange, twenty-eight valuable City lots, situate respectively on Eighty-fourth and Eighty-fifth-streets, between Eleventh and New avenues will be positively sold by MULLER, WILKINS & CO., and in addition, at the same place, a number of legal sales, involving the disposition of a variety of improved City real estate, are announced by other auctioneers. At West Dunnellin, N. J., also today, on the ground, at 12 M., A. D. MELLICK, Jr., & BRO. will conclude an auction sale of 200 choice lots, while at New-Brooklyn, near Plainfield, N. J., on the property, at 2 P. M., the same firm will offer at auction a farm of fifty-one acres of land, and at Tarrytown, Westchester County, on the premises, at 12 M., under a legal order, BLACKWELL & CO. will dispose of a house and lot situate on Washington-street, between Elizabeth and Franklin streets. Special train for MELLICKS' West Dunnellin sale at 11 A. M., from the foot of Liberty-street.

The following additional sales are proposed for the present week, notice of which was omitted in our list published yesterday. To-morrow, Wednesday, May 15, by JAMES CAGNEY, at Exchange, by order of executrix, a three-story frame house and store and lot, located at Long Island City, (Astoria,) Long Island, situated on William-street, lot extending through to St. John's Place, between Willow and Emerald streets. Saturday, May 18, by JERE. JOHNSON, Jr., at New-Brighton, Staten Island, on the ground, at 3 P. M., at public auction, eleven villa plots, containing fifty city lots, situated respectively on Prospect, Lafayette and Goodhue avenues, near Village Hall, being a portion of the well-known property owned by H. TRACY ARNOLD.

The receipt of an illustrated pamphlet of over 100 pages, entitled "Suburban Homes for City Business Men," by Mr. GEORGE L. CATLIN, is acknowledged. The contents are of an interesting character, consisting of a description of the country adjacent to the Eastern Division and branches of the Erie Railway and the Northern Railroad of New-Jersey, with a brief sketch of each town on the lines mentioned, and the advantages offered for the purchase of a suburban home, easy of access to New-York. The work is well compiled, and the information furnished will be appreciated by those whom it is designed to benefit. Copies of the book can be obtained on application at the ticket offices of the Erie Railroad Company.

At private sale, SMITH & GILLESPIE, No. 86 Nassau-street, report having recently sold two plots of land, each containing ten City lots, located at Clifton, N. J., for $2,185. Sale made for F. A. & H. V. PIAGET owners.

MIDLAND PACIFIC RAILWAY 7 Per Cent. Gold Bonds,

Limited to $18,333 per mile and secured by a first mortgage on a completed road running from Nebraska City, on the Missouri River, to Lincoln, the capital of Nebraska. This division has been open one year, and IS NOW EARNING MORE THAN THE INTEREST ON ITS BONDS. It is the central link of a direct East and West road now being rapidly built from Urbana, Ill., through a very rich agricultural and densely populated district the greater part of the way to Grand Island, on the Union Pacific. This new line is about 610 miles long, and much needed by the section of country which it traverses, therefore receives very liberal aid toward its construction, and the completion of the entire line is anticipated within 1873. In the meantime we shall sell the bonds only on completed road. This will make the shortest route from the Atlantic to the Pacific, it being almost an air line.

We recommend these bonds as a prime security. Coupons payable Feb. and Aug. 1, free of tax, in the City of New-York. Present price 90 and accrued interest in currency.

$35,000 OF THE STOCK OF THE BLACK RIVER IRON AND MINING COMPANY can be subscribed for at fifty per cent. of the par value. Stock has been taken in this Company by substantial and experienced iron manufacturers after visiting the property. The furnaces will return a profit of $150,000 a year, with iron at less than present prices, which is 100 per cent. on the investment, and fifty per cent. on the par value of the stock. The Company purchase the furnaces for $100,000, which would cost $250,000 to replace. This is no speculation, but a substantial security. Subscriptions can be made at the office of T. H. 7 PER CT. GOLD BONDS

90 and ACCRUED INTEREST.

The Road runs from Buffalo to the Detroit River, and is the Eastern link in the new AIR LINE FROM BUFFALO TO CHICAGO, and has been under construction for about two years past by railroad men who have seen the necessity for a STEEL RAIL, LOW GRADE SHORT ROUTE between the great railroad systems which diverge from Chicago, Toledo and Buffalo.

Among the builders of the road, by whose cash subscriptions 220 miles (out of 290) have already been graded, bridged and made ready for the superstructure, a large part of the steel rails bought, all of the materials for the stations, and a part of the equipment purchased, are:

MILTON COURTRIGHT, JOHN F. TRACY, DAVID DOWS, WM. L. SCOTT, HENRY FARNHAM, R. A. FORSYTH, HENRY H. PORTER, JOHN M. BURKE, M. L. SYKES, JR., B. F. ALLEN, all directors, either in the Chicago and North-west, or the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific; GEO. OPDYKE, of the Midland Road; JOHN B. ALLEN, SIDNEY DILLON, DANIEL DREW, J. S. CASEMENT, J. & J. CASEY, O. S. CHAPMAN, JOHN ROSS, DAVID STEWART, and F. H. WINSTON.

THE ROAD will be

33 MILES SHORTER THAN ANY OTHER ROAD,

either BUILT or in contemplation between Buffalo and Chicago, and will also shorten the distance between Toledo and Buffalo twenty-three miles.

THE MAXIMUM GRADE on the entire line does not exceed FIFTEEN FEET to the mile—and Ninety-six per cent. of the road IS STRAIGHT.

THE ROAD WILL BE COMPLETED and in running order on or before Dec. 31 of this year.

The principal and interest of the bonds are payable either in New-York, London or Frankfort.

We confidently recommend the bonds to all classes of investors.

Trotting at the Prospect Park Fair Grounds—Clambake the Winner.

Yesterday a match for $250 came off at Prospect Park Course, between the sorrel geldings Clambake and Billy, the former to wagon and the latter in harness. Although Clambake won in three straight heats, the race was closely contested, and afforded considerable sport to those who assembled to witness it. The following are the details of the contest:

FIRST HEAT.—Clambake was the favorite, he selling for $50 and Billy for $26. At the second attempt they received the word with Billy a length the best of it, but he broke immediately and Clambake shot away from him three lengths on the turn, which he increased to four lengths at the quarter-pole in 41½ seconds. On the backstretch Billy again left his feet, but lost no ground, and the same distance divided them. When nearing the half-mile pole Billy closed upon Clambake, and two lengths of space divided them at that point. On the lower turn Billy began to run, and at the three-quarter pole Clambake was but two lengths in advance. As they turned into the homestretch Clambake broke, and a close race ensued to the goal, Clambake winning the heat by a neck in 2:53½.

SECOND HEAT.—Clambake brought $30, and Billy $10. A fine start was effected on the first score, both going away together. As they went to the turn Billy left his feet, and Clambake followed his example. They both got to their gait quickly, and Clambake then went ahead and showed a length in front, increasing the distance a half length more at the quarter-pole, which was passed in 43 seconds. Going along the backstretch Clambake got further away in consequence of Billy's making another break, and at the half-mile pole, in 1:24, he was two lengths in the rear. On the lower turn Billy made two breaks in quick succession, and gained by them, for at the three-quarter pole they were head and head. Turning into the homestretch Clambake broke, but was down again immediately, and trotting squarely won the heat by two lengths in 2:50¾.

THIRD HEAT.—They received the word on the third attempt on even terms; but as they reached the turn Clambake drew away, and was soon half a length in advance. Billy then left his feet, and Clambake went away two lengths, and passed the quarter-pole with that lead in 42½ seconds. Their positions remained unchanged in the backstretch, until nearing the half-mile pole, when Billy closed upon his competitor, and when they passed that point Billy had his nose at Clambake's wheel. Time—1:25. On the lower turn Billy again broke, and Clambake went away two lengths, but at the three-quarter pole Clambake was but three-quarters of a length in front. As they came up the homestretch Billy collared Clambake, but the pace was too hot for him, as he broke twice and Clambake won the heat and race by half a length in 2:49½.

The Maryland Jockey Club has been reorganized under its new charter, and at a meeting held at Baltimore on May 1 the following gentlemen were elected to the various offices: Ex-Gov. Oden Bowie, President; Washington Booth, First Vice-President; Col. E. Lloyd, Second Vice-President; J. D. Ferguson, Secretary; Henry E. Johnson, Treasurer. The Executive Committee is composed of James L. McLane, Alexander D. Brown, Edward Patterson, Louis McLane, J. H. Thomas, E. A. Claybaugh, John L. Carroll, Frank M. Hall, E. L. Rogers.

To the regret of all people who take a genuine interest in the sports of the turf, the Metarie Association has sold its course, and it will be turned into a cemetery. Many of the greatest contests that illumine the pages of the turf's history have taken place, and it will ever be fondly remembered as the scene of Lexington's wonderful performance of running four miles in 7:19¾. The Metarie Jockey Club, whose lease expired on the first of January, is much displeased with the action of the Association in disposing of the grounds, and it is in contemplation to purchase what is now known as the Oakland Course, and if the Jockey Club succeeds, it will continue the meetings.

ROWING.

The American Crew in England, and Their Experience thus Far.

From Our Own Correspondent.

FOX AND HOUNDS HOTEL,
PUTNEY, April 30, 1872.

Up to the present writing, the crew have not commenced to row. They visit the many boat-houses, so densely located hereabouts, and are greatly astonished to find them so numerous. VAN RADEN said, "Why, the banks of the Thames about here look like one enormous boat-house!" On the night of their arrival, they were invited to dine with one of the most prominent citizens of Putney, where they met the renowned "Argonaut," of whom they speak very highly, being very favorably impressed with his brilliant conversation and fund of information. The Atalantas were delighted at the sight of the Thames, on Saturday last, there being about eight four-oared races. The gentlemen comprising the Atalanta crew acknowledge that they did not even dream that boating was carried on to such an extent anywhere in the world, and say that there are a hundred times more racing boats within five miles of London than in the entire area of the United States together.

They are highly pleased with their reception, and, as I told you before, have made a very favorable impression on the people here, who all say that the Atalantas, "win or lose," will be regretted when they leave, which is certainly more than your Harvard men could boast of.

They have taken a private house at Hammersmith, to which they removed their luggage yesterday. They would have been too easily reached here by the great number of visitors; it was therefore deemed expedient to make the change at once; but they make this house (the Fox and Hounds) their head-quarters, and letters addressed to them here will reach them all night. They will probably go out for a pull this afternoon.

I close this in haste, but will write again by next Saturday's steamer.

Debut of the Atalantas in British Waters.

The London Daily Telegraph of May 1 says:

"The Atalanta four made their debut on the Thames water at Hammersmith yesterday morning, in preparation for their race with the London on the 10th of June next. The crew turned out in dark blue, sailor-like boating costumes, which, before entering the boat, were exchanged for rowing flannels of bright magenta, and large-peaked caps of the same. These colors are new to the river, and will render the Americans easily distinguishable during their training. Places in the boat were taken in this order:

	Present weight. St.	Lbs.	Rowing weight. St.	Lbs.
E. Smith (bow)	10	3	10	0
2. A. Handy	9	13	10	0
3. T. Van Raden	11	4	10	10
R. Withers (stroke)	11	6	10	10

On launching the outrigger in the morning about 10, they took her up to Mortlake and down again, varying the pace from 36 to 40 strokes per minute. In the evening, at 5, they re-embarked for a pull to Putney and back, Going against about an hour's flood, they went off very easily, and never, during the whole practice, appeared to put on actual racing pace. One great point in their favor was, however, clear from the first—they pull excellently well together, the whole four moving as one man. But, for the present, the boat seems to lack the dash, vigor and verve which we are accustomed to see in our own racing crews. They go too lightly for English fancy; do not seem to lift the boat enough, or to send her along in that cutting style that one associates with fast wager boats. All these may be peculiarities that belong to the American style of rowing, as contradistinguished from that of Britishers; but, be this as it may, the effect on the eye is hardly reassuring from a racing point of view. The rowing is pretty enough to look at, and will find admirers; but, with all respect for a gallant crew who have won repeated laurels on Transatlantic rivers, we cannot say that the first impressions of their work on the Thames were altogether favorable. The peculiarity of rowing without a coxswain gives a less steady appearance to the boat, though so far as steering is concerned, MR. SMITH, who works the rudder lines with his foot, from the bow, must be complimented on keeping an excellent course. Their stroke seems to be short, and they hardly get as far forward as an Oxford coach would like; but, as already mentioned, they keep good time and finish the stroke well. There was a considerable sprinkling of spectators to see the practice. Nothing is positively fixed yet as to the actual selection of the London four, nor are they expected to get into training until about a week from this time."

Water-Side Notes.

The Biglin brothers left for Philadelphia yesterday. They will row on the Schuylkill until the day of their pair-oared match race with COULTER and CAVITT. The latter are the favorites with the Pennsylvanians, while the New-Yorkers seem to enjoy the same opinion of the Biglin crew, and are ready to wager their betting money that way.

The Oneida Boat Club have their opening day next Saturday.

GEO. ENGELHARDT, of the Sewanaka Club, of Greenpoint, Long Island, and THOS. N. DOYLE, of the Kingfisher Club, of Boston, have sent their names in to the Secretary of the National Amateur Regatta, to be held at Philadelphia.

Messrs. LOSEE and SWAN will enter for the double-scull race.

The Nassau Club of this City have entered a crew for the four-oared shell race, consisting of the following gentlemen:

Grinnell Willis, stroke; Frank G. Brown, 3; S. George, 2; Floyd Jones, bow; J. H. Miller, L. Watson, J. B. Roberts, substitutes.

There are now four entries for this race.

There will be about six entries for the four-oared gig-race, and as matters now stand the prospects for a most brilliant aquatic event seem undoubted.

CROTON IMPURITIES.

Further Information Respecting the Croton Water—An Examination Being Made.

The controversy which is just now taking place in regard to the condition of the Croton water, has created some uneasiness among a considerable class in this City, and the Board of Health, in conjunction with the Croton Department, have determined by a proper examination to ascertain the truth of the charges relative to the impure nature of the water. For nearly three weeks past complaints were constantly made that a very strong taste was discovered in the Croton throughout all parts of the City, and that when filtered it produced a thick, slimy substance, which seemed to be both vegetable and animal matter. On the 1st of May, Mr. LEWIS EDWARDS, the architect, took some samples he had filtered to the head-quarters of the Croton Department, and they immediately undertook to remove the obnoxious taste by blowing off the pipes, but they did not succeed. The taste still remains, and the complaints are daily increased. Mr. EDWARDS has given our reporter the substance of the following: It was stated in the daily journals that Prof. CHANDLER, who is engaged in the process of analyzing it, had stated that there was no impurity in the Croton, and that it contained nothing but a certain percentage of vegetable matter, which was always present in the purest water. It was also alleged by an engineer that there were no fish to be found in it, and that it was in a perfectly pure condition. With regard to the statements regarding Prof. CHANDLER, it is authoritatively known that he has pronounced no opinion on the subject, and that his report will not appear until the end of this week. He is analyzing water from Albany, Ridgewood water of Brooklyn and several other places, for the purpose of discovering the difference, if any, between them and the Croton, and though his report will not be published for several days, yet he has admitted that the Croton contains a great deal of unusual matter, but thinks that there is no likelihood of immediate danger resulting from its use, and that there is no necessity for apprehension in that connection. Upon further investigation it has been discovered that though it is not an uncommon thing to find fish in the pipes, principally the leaders and main pipes, latterly they have been found to an unusual degree, and in some cases have completely choked them up. Near the House of the Good Shepherd, at the corner of Twenty-seventh-street and Fourth-avenue, Broadway near Bleecker, and at Thirtieth-street and Lexington-avenue, both fish and fishy substances were found. To-day Prof. CHANDLER and some members of the Health Commission will go through the Croton works, making a complete examination, and if it is necessary all the reservoirs will be emptied and cleaned out. The Health Department and the Department of Public Works are anxious to have the matter set at rest by a chemical examination, which is now being made, and will be reported upon very soon.
